Aquaculture Now Legal As Agriculture In Pennsylvania

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Aquaculture in Pennsylvania is to soon be formally recognized as agriculture and encouraged in its development.

On Oct. 16, state Gov. Tom Ridge signed into law the state Aquaculture Development Law, which goes into effect mid-December.

Though the law was expected to be passed by the current Legislature, the importance of the now officially recognized branch of agriculture has not been lost on the industry.

That goes for the state Farm Show Commission, as well.

In fact, the Farm Show Commission, which oversees the state Farm Show Complex and the organization of the annual state Farm Show, has been aggressive in helping to promote the industry.

For the first time this year, there's to be a new state Farm Show judging division for show classes that reflect student aquacultural projects currently conducted by high school students. (They must be enrolled in classes taught by agricultural instructors, which, to knowledge, follows

Flood, Erosion Control Vital To Conservation Award Winners

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — David and Sharon Bishop remember the night of "no sleep."

On a day in mid-July 1988, monsoon-like rains began and, by early evening, four inches of rain had fallen.

The tropical storm caused a tributary, which runs between the house and the barn, to flood. Floodwater from the creek came up to the second step on the house and tore a four-foot deep ditch through their lane.

The floodwater flowed through the barn, where cows were in water up to their udders.

The rain stopped late in the evening. However, at 2 a.m. the Bishops were still standing in water.

David said, "I know we didn't get any sleep that night."

The rain "washed the lane out," said Sharon. She said an excavator had to come with stones to put the lane back together before the milk truck could get in.

The same year a stream overflow channel was placed around the house and barn. In 1991, pipes to allow flows to pass through the original channel but route excessive flows around the buildings and back into the original stream below the farm were installed with the help of the organization formerly known as the Soil Conservation Service (now Natural Resource Conservation Service or NRCS). Cost for the pipe system: about $6,700, including engineering fees, said David.

Before long, the work to control stormwater flow paid off — there was no more flooding. The Bishops' only worry has been to make sure the flow continues, despite severe ice and snow storms in the past several years. All told, the use of 1,600 feet of grassed waterways and 4,900 feet of diversions to control water flow have stemmed soil erosion on the Bishop Farm.

For their efforts to conserve soil and protect the watershed, the Bishops of Ensenada Farm in Plumstead Township were honored early this month by the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts (PACD) at its annual awards banquet in Scranton.

David is a fourth generation farmer on the dairy. David's father, George, developed a conservation plan in 1967 and promptly had the farm contoured and stripcropped.

Dave Bishop practices conservation tillage on all cropland. This spring, he no-tilled 235 acres of

Pa. Cooperatives Council Recognizes Outstanding Efforts

ALTOONA (Blair Co.) — The Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives (PCC) held its annual meeting and awards program Wednesday at the Altoona Ramada Inn.

The annual meeting of the more than 25-year-old organization is held to recognize outstanding achievements of members, discuss issues of concern, provide educational forums, and conduct association business.

In association business, the directors re-elected its slate of officers. They are Randall Meabon, president; James Barnett, vice president; and Bruce Stainbrook, executive director. The position of secretary is non-elected and is fulfilled by the executive director, Crystal Smithmyer.

The day's program began with leadership training in the morning; was followed by an awards luncheon featuring state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel E. Hayes Jr.; then two speakers — Dennis Hatfield, a senior leadership consultant with the Gallup Organization, and state Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Russell Redding; and a discussion by two representatives of the large dairy cooperatives Land O' Lakes Cooperative and Dairy Farmers of America Inc..

The afteroon finished with the business meeting and the election of officers.

In Secretary Hayes' talk to the group, consisting of representatives of many of Pennsylvania's and regional cooperatives with concerns from energy to dairy services to supplies, Hayes said that a

Poultry Association Faces Challenges

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — "This year has brought the stark realities of the industry to a head," said John Mattilio, president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association, at its annual banquet held Tuesday evening.

The reappearance of avian influenza (A.I.) in county flocks last winter resulted in additional problems for both producers and industry. Challenges with manure disposal, stockpiling litter, weather-related problems, and preventing and controlling AI all contributed to taking money out of producers' pockets.

The Association tackled environmental, food safety, and rural-urban issues this past year. The Association's annual Poultry Progress Day, where poultry producers are taught how to best tackle these problems, needed to be cancelled because of the A.I. scare.

Not all the news was downcast. The industry released its first professionally-prepared video, "It's Not Just Chicken Feed," which tells the story of the egg. To the beat of peppy music, the story is comically presented but packed with facts. Inspector George and Chicken Farmer Sam illustrate the biosecurity methods used to guarantee that eggs are safe to eat.

The video is to be used in school presentations and as an educational tool in other public events. A copy of the video is available upon request.

Another outstanding achievement was that Kendra Weaver, former poultry ambassador, was featured on the cover of Lancaster County Magazine.

"We (the poultry industry) received publicity we never had before through Kendra's efforts," Mattilio said.

Sarah Woodling was introduced as the newly appointed Poultry

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed Oct 28, 1998

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids were slightly higher at the close today. Wheat mostly steady to 2 cents higher. Corn steady to 2 cents higher. Sorghum up 1 to down 1 cent. Soybeans 4 to 8 cents higher. Some of the support stemmed from the continued talks of food aid to Russia. It is suggested now that 4 million tonnes of wheat and wheat flour could be included. Reports that the aid package would include nearly 30 million bushels of US corn was very supportive to bids. Higher bean bids were strengthened by PL-480 allocations including 74 thousand tonnes of meal to Russia.

Hershey Equipment - Best Kept Secret In The Broiler Industry

Big Dutchman®

UniGROW360 BROILER FEEDING SYSTEM.

After years of Broiler Pan Evolution, It's Time for a Revolution.

Everyone also knows manually adjusting hundreds of pans every couple of days is unrealistic. The income you would gain in feed efficiency would be lost several times over in labor costs. That's why the UniGROW360 system is so revolutionary.

NOW, YOU CAN QUICKLY AND EASILY ADJUST THE FEED LEVEL AS OFTEN AS YOU LIKE

This special winch enables simultaneous feed level adjustment of a line of UniGROW360 pans with a simple turn of the crank. Unlike other systems, it is not dependent upon level floors.

The Old Farmer's Almanac This Week With Almanac

NOVEMBER 2-8, 1998

FULL BEAVER MOON, NOV. 4.

ELFCTION DAY, NOV. 3

To pick out, decide upon, deliberately select, single out. . . . The right or ability to make a choice. . . . Will you exercise your right? Will you choose deliberately, with good knowledge of your candidate's track record? Election Day brings out the most cynical of us and the most hopeful, the young and the old, the optimist and the pessimist. Which will you be? If you are choosing the "lesser of two evils," will you write a letter telling the candidate why you feel as you do? If you believe in a candidate, have you spoken to others about why?

There are two ways of spreading light: to be the candle or the mirror that reflects it.

– Edith Wharton

TIP OF THE WEEK

OPINION

Feed The World Save Environment Too

While the world's population grew by more than 100 million in 1995 to 5.75 billion, which was the largest increase recorded in a single year, the percent of increase at 1.55 was the smallest percentage increase in at least two generations. Back in 1970, by contrast, world population was growing by 2.1 percent annually.

Global population growth is framed by this irony: while favorable trends toward slower growth and stabilization exist today, as compared with 30 years ago, the population continues to expand at a rapid pace. In the developing world, growth patterns remain highest and threaten to increase further over the next 50 years. In the developed world, population growth has stabilized and is not expected to expand appreciably in the long-term.

While the pressure of population expansion on global food needs are real, many of the worst predictions of impending disaster may be overstated, largely because world agricultural productivity has risen sharply, and real food prices have fallen by more than 50 percent. Such progress has resulted in some remarkable achievements. Today, according to a briefing paper entitled "The Challenges of Feeding the World," published by Monsanto, more than 80 percent of the population of the developing world have access to adequate diets, compared with only 64 percent in the 1970's. The number of undernourished has also fallen.

This success is in large part due to the achievement of the global agricultural sector and the resulting relatively low prices for many essential foods and staples. However, this progress has come at a cost to the environment and has rendered inadequate the practices of the "green revolution." Thus, agriculture will need to be even more innovative to maintain and expand food production in light of global population and environmental realities. In the future we must disturb less land for production of food and fiber. We have only begun to see the technology that will allow us to do this. The most exciting innovations in plant production and animal husbandry are yet to come. Future farmers will not only feed the world, they will save the environment too.

Now Is The Time

To Understand Dairy Options

How would you like the opportunity to establish a floor BFP (Basic Formula Price) under the milk you sell? BFP options allows you the security of setting a floor price for your production while still being able to capitalize on any upward price movement in the cash market. This differs from forward contracts and futures.

If the market moves up after you lock in your price, you miss that extra income opportunity. With options, you still receive the same minimum price protection offered by a forward or futures contract. If the BFP price unexpectedly moves upward, you are able to capture that additional income. Many people consider options price insurance. You pay a premium for a certain amount of coverage or price protection. The better the coverage, the higher the premium. With options there is no risk of margin calls.

To Look For USDA Mailing on Options

The Dairy Options Pilot Program (DOPP) is being tested in several states and in six counties in Pennsylvania (Berks, Bradford, Chester, Crawford, Franklin and Lancaster). Dairy producers in these counties should be receiving a letter in November from USDA announcing this program. Included in the mailing will be an application form to be return if the farmer is interested in participating in the pilot program and four hour educational session in January.

A maximum of 100 farmers per county will be selected to participate in the program. The DOPP is designed to help farmers learn more about BFP options and how to use them as tools for protecting milk prices.

They will learn by actually trading BFP options at a very minimal cost. If you are interested in participating in DOPP, do not discard the USDA letter and application form. Be sure to return the application form on time so USDA knows you are interested in learning about options. The application is not binding. It is only an expression of your interest.

To Go Easy On The Grain

With a good harvest, good milk prices and low grain prices, the stage is set for increased milk production, according to Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent. However, in the interest of producing more milk, do not forget that cows are ruminants and they need a lot of forage and effective fiber in their ration.

Right now, with high fat prices, forages and fiber may help boost fat tests and milk prices. You may want to feed for herd average fat tests of 3.5 per cent or greater for Holsteins. Tests below 3.2 per cent may indicate acidosis problems. These may lead to such costly problems as ketosis, depressed appetites, twisted stomachs, sore feet, poor body condition, reduced conception rates, lower milk production and increased culling rates.

To help prevent these problems, consider these guidelines:

1. Grain dry matter intakes should be kept below 60 per cent of total dry matter intake.

2. Acid detergent fiber (ADF) content should generally be 18 per cent of total ration dry matter or greater

3. Forage neutral detergent fiber (FNDF) content generally should not drop below 21 per cent of total ration dry matter.

4. Total neutral detergent fiber (NDF) content generally should not drop below 28 per cent of total ration dry matter. Lower producing cows, consuming less than 50 pounds of dry matter, will need higher levels in their ration. and

5. Non structural carbohydrates (NSC) should be 30 to 40 per cent of total ration dry matter If a lot of starch (corn, hominy) is being fed, the levels should be closer to 30 per cent. If the concentrate consists of a lot of by products (soyhulls, cottonseed) the levels should be closer to 40 per cent.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ONE WAY TO BE #1!
November 1, 1998

Background Scripture:
Amos 6 through 7
Devotional Reading:
Acts 4:13-22

Recently, watching the Stanley Cup play-offs in the National Hockey League, I was appalled at the assumption that gratuitous violence was simply part of being a champion team, no matter who was hurt and maimed. Being number one has become an obsession in our country today in virtually every department of life.

I have no problem with people striving for excellence. But I do with the belief that being "king of the hill" is the only thing important and, that to achieve it and keep it, anything goes...

Well, for those of use who cannot live without being number one in at least something, Amos has found a way that is guaranteed to put your name at the very top of the pile: "Therefore they shall now be first of those who go into exile..." (6:7). This is a guarantee made, not by Amos himself, but by the God of Israel.

AT EASE IN ZION

So, to be first on the calamity list, all you have to do is follow Amos' prescription. And to whom will this top listing come?— "...those who are at ease in Zion... who feel secure on the mountain of Samaria... who lie upon beds of ivory, and stretch themselves upon their couches, and eat lambs from the flock..., who sing idle songs to the sound of the harp, and like David invent for themselves instruments of music; who drink wine in bowls, and anoint themselves with the finest oils, but are not grieved over the ruin of Joseph" (6:1-7).

He is not saying they will be first in line because of any of these activities in themselves. Lying on bed of ivory per se is not evil, nor is eating lambs from the flock. Rather, in these verses Amos has painted a picture of luxurious self-indulgence, an arrogance of the spirit that persuades people to feel secure, not in the Lord, but in the multitude of their comforts, privileges and powers.

They are "at ease in Zion" but they ought to be uneasy. They "feel secure on the mountain of Samaria" (the focus of worship for the Northern Kingdom, as opposed to Jerusalem in the South) but they really have no security because they have turned their backs to the Lord. When he says that they are "not grieved over the ruin of Joseph," he is saying that they have turned a blind eye to the moral and spiritual decay of their kingdom. The result: terrible death and desolation and God will not intervene to prevent it this time.

THE WEIGHT OF WORDS

If someone should arise in your church on Sunday morning and make such a prophecy, I'm sure he or she would quickly be ostracized. It is hard to hear something so accusative when we are quite certain that we have every reason to be "at ease in Zion." So it is understandable that Amos' message did not earn him admiration and popularity. Amaziah, the priest of the sanctuary in Bethel, was convinced that "that land is not able to bear all his word."

Later, King Amaziah told him in no uncertain terms to get out of the country. Go to Judah and ply your prophetic profession there! "...but never again prophesy at Bethel, for it is the King's sanctuary, and it is a temple of the kingdom" (7:10-12). The implication is that people of power shall control just how much or how little truth will be told to the people. Everyone loves prophets—somewhere else!

Amos replies that he is not a prophet by profession. God gave this herdsman and dresser of sycamore trees a message and he is simply carrying that message as God commanded: if you want to be number one on the list of those who will pay the price for their arrogance, just keep on doing what you are doing!

Flood, Erosion Control Vital To Conservation Award Winners

corn and soybeans.

Recently the Bishops finished work for the Deep Run Mennonite Church East on an annual fundraising project. At the same time they were busy making final arrangements to preserve their own farm so they can purchase additional acreage on a neighboring farm.

The farm is located on moderately sloping topography adjacent to a tributary of the north branch of the Neshaminy Creek. The slopes are a challenge — not only to contain erosion but to ensure the quality of the surface water that feeds into the north branch and is used for drinking.

Last fall David installed a stabilized agricultural waterway crossing at a cost of $350 (he saved by using inexpensive and sometimes free items). The crossings protect the New Glena part of the Neshaminy watershed. A month ago he installed another crossing to protect the streams on his property from livestock damage. A barnyard runoff control plan was implemented two years ago.

Bishop has also installed rain gutter runoff control system, directed away from the barnyard. In addition, runoff water from the rest of the barnyard is directed through a picket fence to filter solids and then to a fenced off grass filter area to treat liquids.

A manure facility — a concrete pad built in 1970 — is used to store manure over winter and spread following a nutrient management plan. From spring to fall Bishop spreads the manure on a daily basis. He noted that because of concerns about the neighbors over odors caused by stirring the manure, he spreads daily.

The Bishops farm 560 acres, including rented ground. The home farm encompasses about 37 tillable acres — the rest is pasture, according to David. Bishop purchased the herd from his father in 1988. In 1990 David purchased his way out of the partnership and owns the farm.

George Bishop started the farm with a herd of registered Ayrshires and gradually switched to registered Holsteins. David said his grandfather, Walter, at one time maintained a herd completely made up of colored breeds. George Bishop had chickens and cows — about 2,500 layers and broilers and about 58 cows. At one time, they also boarded hogs.

In 1982, a heifer barn and two silos were installed. Additional silos were installed in 1984.

In 1990, the farm maintained more than 100 cows. Now they are milking about 120 cows with an additional 120 calves. The farm, on Pa.DHIA, averages 25,700 pounds. They milk tiestall to pipeline twice daily. The 1997 Master Farmers are members of the Land O'Lakes Cooperative.

The Bishops manage about 210 acres of corn, 100 acres of soybeans (which are roasted), 45 acres of wheat (for straw), and about 65 acres of alfalfa/rye and orchardgrass/timothy.

Additional acres are in clover and grass mixes. Most of the corn acres was in no-till. Much of the remaining acres are in a rotationally grazed pasture system.

According to the NRCS, Bishop uses a rotational grazing system on all of his pastures to maximize their feeding potential. Woodlots are selectively cut and dead or diseased trees are removed as part of his regular forestry management plan.

The toughest challenge has been dealing with stormwater on the farm. David noted that much of the farmland, particularly north and upslope from the farm, has been lost to development. A huge shopping center with a lot of macadam, according to Sharon, was installed. Before the shopping center, built at Plumsteadville in 1986, the Bishops didn't have to contend with floods. Also, the housing boom in the mid to late 1980s also increased the water coming downslope through their farm.

The biggest accomplishment, according to the Bishops, has been preserving their own farm to purchase bordering acreage. Settlement on 37 acres and a house and barn is set to take place early next month.

Sharon noted the farm's goal is to include owning more land base for the existing farm to ensure its survival.

A reason for owning more land, David noted, was simply to provide space between his farm and development. In one barn, the dairy sanitizer is activated at 3:30 a.m. — the sound it makes could concern neighbors. The additional land will provide that space, as well as additional cropland acres for feed.

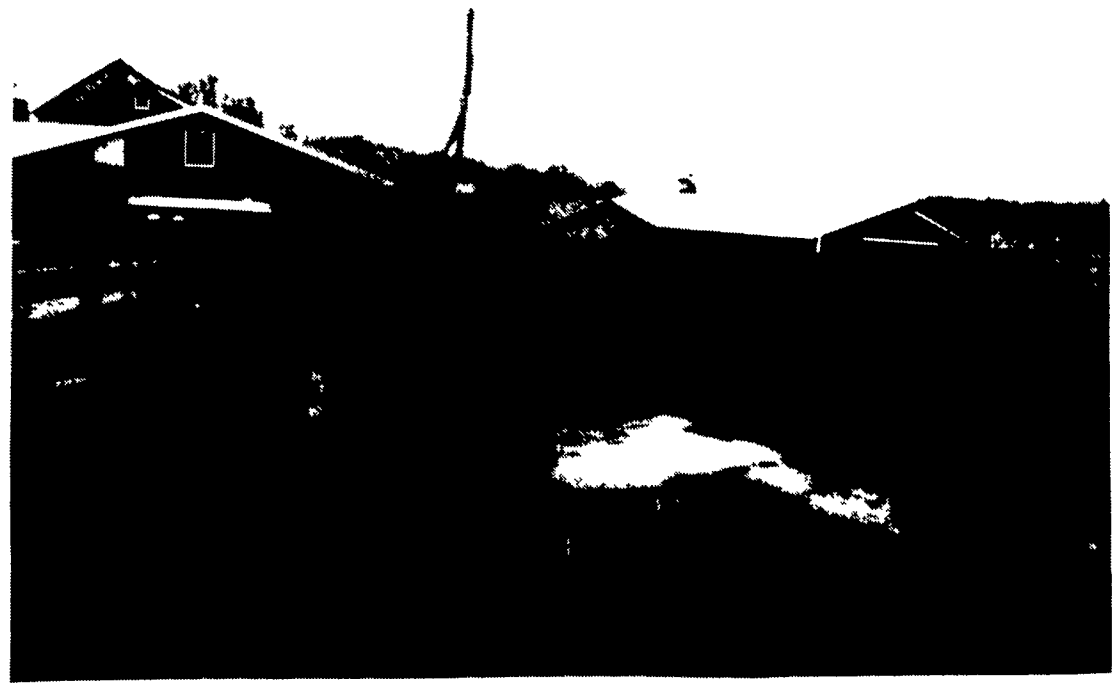
The Bishops farm with their son, Josh, 14, in the 8th grade at Holicong Middle School in Mechanicsville and daughter Nicole, 11, in the 6th grade at Gayman Elementary School in Danboro. The family members are active participants in the 4-H Dairy Club and the family "leases" Holstein calves to other 4-H members, according to the extension office. They also have a full-time employee, Mike Lapsley. They also have some part-time help from Wes DeNato and Ruthann Moyer. George Bishop helps with the feeding.

They also show during the All American in Harrisburg and at the Middletown Grange Fair in August. The Bishops also compete at the Southeast District Show, a prelude to All American.

In the future, Sharon said that son Josh has plans to increase the size of the dairy to 200 cows and perhaps install a carousel milker. David noted that Josh is "all fired up" with plans for the farm in the years ahead.

In 1991, pipes to allow flows to pass through the original channel but route excessive flows around the buildings and back into the original stream below the farm were installed with the help of the organization formerly known as the Soil Conservation Service (now Natural Resource Conservation Service or NRCS). Cost for the pipe system: about $6,700, including engineering fees, said David.

Runoff water from the rest of the barnyard is directed through a picket fence to filter solids and then to a fenced off grass filter area to treat liquids.



A manure facility — a concrete pad built in 1970 — is used to store manure over winter and spread following a nutrient management plan.

First Simmental Embryos Exported To Poland

Marking the first shipment of Pennsylvania Simmental beef cattle embryos to Poland, these officials and farmers gathered to mark this special state agriculture exporting event. Bill and Karen Flagg of Warren Point Simmental Cattle, Elverson, were contacted by a large Polish farm with the desire to import U.S Simmental genetics because the beef cattle in Poland do not have pure bloodlines. Actually, the dam of most of the embryos is a 19 year-old daughter of a foundation cow that was imported to the U.S. from Germany in the 1970's. The exported embryos, which have already arrived at their destination, will become the foundation herd for the Ostaszewski family in Poland.

The Em-Tran facility at Elizabethtown provided the reproductive technology and found veterinarians in Poland who could do the recipient implanting. The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, under the direction of Samuel Hayes, Jr., secretary, helped with the contact and visited the actual farm on a Pennsylvania trade mission to Poland at the time these embryos reached their destination.

Plum Bottom Hosts State Ayrshire Sale

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — John Reed Rodgers of Plum Bottom Dairy Farm, Belleville, hosted the Pennsylvania Ayrshire Association's Consignment Sale the middle of September. The "Raised to Graze" sale drew buyers from Pennsylvania, New York, and Maryland. Most of the animals sold were originally purchased by Rodgers privately or at consignment or dispersal sales, then raised through intensive rotational grazing. Thirteen others consigned animals.

Alvin String III, of Harrisonville, N.J., paid $2,000 for the highest selling animal, Toll-Gate-Ayr BBK Beth, who was Grand Champion at the Eastern National Junior Show in 1993. This animal was owned by Rodgers. The second highest selling animal was owned and bred by Carolyn Loucks of Reedsville. Roundabout-Fru-T Pebbles was purchased by Earl VanTassel from Idalia County for $1,350.

Challenge Of The Breeds

"Country Cadilac," an Arabian owned by Shirley Craig, Nottingham, was named the Keystone Sovereign Champion in the 1998 "Challenge of the Breeds" held at KILE.

The Sovereign Champion receives #1,000. "Country Cadilac" is an 8-year-old Arabian stallion, who was recently named East Coast Champion Trail Horse, and was reserve Champion Western Pleasure Amateur Owner to Ride, earning enough points to receive the Relsa Troxall award as High Point Amateur Lady Rider.

This is the fourth time Craig has won the Challenge, with three different Arabians. She enjoys participating because, "It is a challenge - it is a good name for the contest. It requires versatility." She said experience helps a lot, but the primary ingredient for success is training, which, she said, takes "time and patience."

An enthusiast for the breed, Craig says she likes them for their disposition. "They are pleasant and sweet, and they are really a nice family horse. They are easy to keep." She got her first pony when she was eight, and her first horse when she was 16. She participated in Lancaster County 4-H.

In a very close contest, selected by the score of the sixth class, reserve champion was "Meadow Creek Jake," a Percheron owned and ridden by Carolyn Loucks, Reedsville. Placing sixth in last year's Challenge, "Jake" has been in the contest for the last three years. He won the first ever Western and English Draft horse under saddle held at KILE, and won the first ever draft Under saddle at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

The contest was sponsored by the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine, New Bolton Center, Kennett Square.

Informed Farmer Reads Lancaster Farming

Even when farmers don't have time, they take time to read Lancaster Farming. Dennis Drager, Marietta, was caught in this kind of situation a few weeks ago when the haylage needed to be put in the silo. While the load automatically fed into the blower, Dennis pulled up an easy chair and scanned the latest issue of farm news, markets, and advertising messages. John Hess of Hess Agri Marketing, a neighbor, caught Dennis' reading moment on camera and was kind enough to send this photo along to the editor.

September Milk Production Up

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Milk production in Pennsylvania during September 1998 totaled 876 million pounds, 1.5 percent above last year's production, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

The number of milk cows in the state during the month averaged 635,000 head, down 4,000 from September 1997 and unchanged from August 1998.

Production per cow averaged 1,380 pounds in September, 50 pounds less than August but up 30 pounds from September 1997.

Milk production in the 20 states surveyed during September 1998 totaled 10.7 billion pounds, up .4 percent when compared to production in these same states during September 1997.

August revised production, at 11.2 billion pounds was down .5 percent from August 1997. The number of milk cows averaged 7.76 million head, up 5,000 head from a year earlier, while production per cow averaged 1,381 pounds, 4 pounds above September of last year.

During the July-September period, the 20 major states produced 85.8 percent of the nation's production.

If producers in the remaining 30 states not surveyed monthly followed the trend shown by the 20 reporting states, U.S. milk production for September would be 12.5 billion pounds, unchanged from September of last year.

Rest Areas - Article 21

The goal is to encourage cows to spend a lot of time lying down in a clean area where they can rest and chew their cud. It has been said that cows should be doing one of three things, all of which are related to the production and harvesting of milk.

Standing to eat, consuming feed to convert to milk
Standing to be milked.
Lying down so they can - -
Conserve energy and use more of it for milk production.
Chew their cuds and make more milk.
Send more blood and nutrients to the udder to make milk

Make rest areas comfortable, healthy and enticing for cows to use so they lie down and chew their cuds Options include·

Well-sodded areas.
Well-bedded pens.
Properly designed stalls with soft beds, covered with some bedding

Provide cows with clean, dry, comfortable stalls and pens

Cow mattresses and soft rubber mats provide comfort to cows, but the cows should still be bedded for the reasons discussed below The hard rubber mats and rubber belting materials generally are not satisfactory

A thick layer of bedding on stall beds works just as well as mats and mattresses, without the cost of purchasing them nor the cost of maintaining and replacing them in the future A bedding retainer bar at the rear of the stall can help hold the bedding in the stall. However, bedding cost is a factor, but the cost of bedding should be weighed against its benefits, which is discussed below

Bedding is beneficial because it absorbs moisture, it helps to protect the teat end from exposure to large numbers of mastitis-causing organisms, it provides more cushion for the hocks and reduces hock injuries. and it offers cows more traction so they struggle less and trample fewer teats when getting up

The design of the stall is critical, and when you are remodeling or building, be sure to get the dimensions right the first time Recommended design specs can be obtained from many universities, builders, engineers and other consultants Stalls should encourage usage, not discourage usage Cows should enter the stall, lie down and get up without hesitation and without fear of experiencing discomfort or injury

In tiestalls, the position of tie rails and cow trainers, the length of tie chains and the position of water bowls affect how cows lie down and get up, how well they can reach the manger, and how well they can reach and operate the water bowls. Attempt to train heifers to the use of stalls before they calve

When cows are lying down in freestalls, they need to have enough lunge room to thrust their head forward or sideways, in a low position, in order to get up easily without being obstructed by partitions, poorly positioned dividers, etc. Brisket boards help make sure cows lie in the proper position so they can get up easily. Neck rails and stall dividers help position the cow properly when she is standing so she ends up in the right position when she lies down. Proper height of the top rail of the stall divider can discourage cows from turning around in their stalls. Once the cow is lying down the stall divider serves no purpose, and it is more comfortable if cows don't have a divider poking them in their ribs, hips and legs; that makes loop dividers advantageous. Aquaculture Now Legal As Agriculture In Pennsylvania

existing situations.)

Charles Itle, livestock show manager for the state Farm Show, said entries are still being sought. High school teachers with such class projects can call (717) 787-2905 for more information on entering.

Technically, aquaculture has never been an agricultural enterprise in Pennsylvania, although over the past years the state Department of Agriculture and the state Legislature have made provisions for aquaculture that effectively treated it as a member of the "agricultural family" of businesses.

For example, aquaculture had been given the ability to use fuel-tax exempt fuel oil (dyed red) for agricultural purposes, and has been allowed to have farm truck license plates.

Further, the state Department of Agriculture's diagnostic laboratory system came to the aid of aquaculture several years ago when it helped to develop a test for "whirling disease" in trout.

(The accomplishment allowed Pennsylvania trout producers to sell fish to New York state in time to stock New York trout streams for the opening day of its trout season. It was a coup for some Pennsylvania trout producers — up until Pennsylvania researchers rapidly developed an acceptable whirling disease test, there was no test. Regardless, New York state officials had banned importing trout if the fish didn't test free of whirling disease. The quick work by researchers allowed New Yorkers to have their trout season and Pennsylvania trout farmers to sell them fish.)

But the new law is to make that support a fulltime expectation of the state Department of Agriculture's Diagnostic Laboratories.

For the most part, Pennsylvania has responded to some of the needs of its aquacultural industry, but the full recognition of the enterprise raises its status.

"Pennsylvania's aquaculture operations have annual sales of over $13.8 million and contribute approximately $45.1 million to the commonwealth's economy," said state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel E. Hayes Jr.

"The primary markets are fish for stocking private waters, garden pond and aquarium fish, baitfish for the sport fishing industry, food-fish for restaurants and supermarkets, and research.

"Our top four categories of production are trout, goldfish and koi, hybrid striped bass, and baitfish," Hayes said. "We expect the new law to encourage even faster growth of this environmentally friendly form of agriculture."

The law passed not only recognizes the industry as agriculture, but creates a foundation for further development of the industry.

The three-part stated purpose of the law, is:

" • To encourage aquacultural operators to make a long-term commitment to aquaculture by offering them the same protections afforded other agricultural practices.

• To reduce the amount of governmental agencies with jurisdiction over aquaculture, by transferring authority over commercial aquacultural operations to the Department of Agriculture.

• To encourage further development of the aquacultural industry by including aquaculture in any and all promotional and other economic developmental programs which are made available to other industry sectors."

The law directs the state Department of Agriculture to develop a plan to promote and develop the aquaculture industry, and implement the plan as regulations of the department.

The law also calls for the formation of a 21-member advisory committee. The chairman of the committee is to be the secretary of agriculture, or a designee.

Other ex officio members (or designees representing such officials) are to be the secretaries of the state departments of Environmental Protection, and Community and Economic Development; the executive director of the state Fish and Boat Commission; the chairman and minority chairman of the House and Senate Ag and Rural Affairs committees, and the chairman and minority chairman of the House and Senate Game and Fisheries committees.

The nine appointed members are all to be active producers in their respective industries, as well as state residents.

There are to be three producers of cold water fishes; one producer of warm water fishes; one producer working with an indoor facility (the other two fish production industries are currently practiced as primarily outdoor activities); a person who supplies products or provides services for the aquaculture industry; an aquacultural wholesaler, food broker or food merchant; an aquarium or ornamental species aquacultural merchant; and a representative of the sport fishing industry.

The appointed members of the committee are to serve three-year terms. The ex officio members serve while in office.

The committee is to draft and submit an aquacultural plan to the secretary of agriculture prior to Dec. 31, 1999.

The law also directs the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS — a joint federal-state service) to conduct a survey of aquacultural activity in the state every two years.

Currently, PASS reports trout production, just a portion of the aquacultural activity in the state.

The new report is assumed to include the production of ornamentals, baitfish, warm water fishes, and other types of aquacultural production.

The information gathered by PASS for the survey is not public information, and the individual survey forms required to be filed by permitted operations will not be shared with any other organization or the public.

While the forms are to require the gross receipts and sales for the aquacultural species produced, the information is to be used only to aquire general statistics about the entire industry in the state.

While statistical information is used for a variety of purposes, the aquacultural data compiled by PASS is expected to benefit the aquacultural industry in several ways, but in one way especially — in recognition.

The better knowledge the agriculture department and other promotional agencies have about the types and strengths of aquacultural subindustries in Pennsylvania, the better the job that can be done to promote those subindustries, as well as the entire industry.

The federal government already recognizes aquaculture as an agricultural enterprise, and through some of the USDA disaster relief programs, some Pennsylvania operations have already been helped through low interest loans, grants, etc.

The new law defines "aquaculture" as, "A form of agriculture which is the controlled cultivation of aquatic plants, animals and microogranisms."

Conceptually, that fairly well includes the gamet of existing and futuristic aquacultural enterprises.

For example, there seems to be no good reason why beneficial bacteria couldn't be farm-raised (perhaps even by using manure from other livestock as an energy and other nutrient source.)

The same would seem to hold true for producing desirable types of algea or aquatic plants, from ornamentals to edibles.

Permits and licenses are required for commercial aquacultural operations, such as trout raising facilities, but the law clarifies how aquaculture is to be considered under the permitting laws.

For example, there had been concern expressed among some owners of existing aquaculture

facilities that their impoundments along low-lying areas, generally on flood plains, could be considered wetlands and be affected by laws intended to protect real wetlands that serve to filter water, moderate its pH, and retain it through dry periods.

The law states, "Aquaculture facilities licensed ... are not wetlands ... so long as such facilities were created and have been continuousvly operating for any purpose, including effluent mitigation, prior to Sept. 23, 1985."

It goes on to clarify that facilities constructed after that date also receive legal protection from being considered a wetland, as long as they were not created upon, or currently exist upon, wetlands.

It also allows normal maintenance and improvements on facilities, "... notwithstanding any statutory provision relating to wetlands."

The pre-September 1985 facilities are also exempt from having to have state permits for maintenance or improvements.

Those familiar with current federal proposals aimed at controlling nutrient management of livestock operations (espeically large operations), should recognize the permits developed and proposed in the state under the National Pollution Discharge Elimination System (NPDES).

Under the Clinton Administration's Clean Water Act initiative, the federal Environmental Protection Agency has been attempting to get states to develop NPDES permits for certain livestock operations.

The permits are controversial because they imply regular and unusual federal oversight and concern of local farming businesses, and because the granting of such permits are open to public hearings, which some consider could open up farms to attact from nuisance neighbors or residential or recreational developers.

While the Pennsylvania agricultural industry has mostly sided with efforts to make farming concerns more the jurisdication of state government rather than local, that is done because a number of farms and farming operations don't easily fall within local boundaries, but almost all fall within state borders. (There are of course exceptions.)

State oversight, and its overiding protection (mostly from local land-use battles), had been seen as preferable because local governments had been creating local ordinances restricting normal and progressive agricultural operations.

Most state-issued NPDES permits (issued by the states under authority and direction provided by the federal government) deal with industrial and municipal operations involving direct dumping of waste water into streams and earth moving activities involving more than five acres.

More recently versions of the permits have been developed to address non-point sources of potential water pollution — agricultural operations.

For the most part, only since the 1970s through the 80s did aquacultural operations begin to receive second glances for potential nutrient pollution of streams.

Fish manure and uneaten food that passes through some of the state's many trout facilities (many of the largest owned by the state Fish and Boat Commission) had started to become somewhat of an issue as fisherman and stream biologists pointed to the effluent backwater areas of some state and private fisheries.

Those backwaters generally appeared heavy with bacteria and different algea, and did seem to have at least some impact on the streams.

Under the new aquaculture law, a general permit is to be developed by the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) for aquacultural facilities, and aquacultural facilities that discharge waters into streams would be required to obtain a permit and comply with its provisions for testing and reporting.

(The permit application fee is not to exceed $100 per facility over a 5-year period.)

Further, all state agencies are to work with DEP to develop a consolidated permitting process for aquaculture.

The law also directs the State Treasury to establish an Aquaculture Development Account, the funds of which are to be used to "... stimulate the growth of the aquacultural industry in ..." Pennsylvania.

(Funds for the account are to come from all fees and charges the law generates, except for monies generated from the NPDES permit fees.)

The uses of the account funds are described in the law as being for the the administration of PDA aquaculture programs, including the PASS survey; up to 10 percent deposited every year may be used for research; and the remainder after administrative costs, to be used to provide low-interest loans to aquacultural producers for development, expansion and modernization of facilities.

The Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission is the independent state agency given responsibility for the protection of the state's fishes, reptiles and amphibians.

While it has a visible force that appears to place heavy emphasis on propagation of sport fish and enforcement and education of sport fishing and boating laws, the PFBC has had responsibility and authority to control the introduction of fish and other aquatic species into the waters of the state.

It also is involved with water quality issues, and actually has had a fairly long memorandum of understanding with the DEP (when formerly DER) for the enforcement of water pollution and environmental laws.

For example, it used to be that the PFBC could help with stream improvement work, but the landowner would be required to get permission from DER for the work. The PFBC can now design and approve such work without having to directly involve DEP staff.

As protector of the state's wild and natural fisheries, the PFBC has had authority to determine what species of fish could be released, raised or propagated in waters flowing into the state's free flowing waterways.

(Closed-loop, or self-contained aquacultural systems are covered under different rules. For example, such systems avoid the PFBC bans on raising certain fish species, such as tilapia, that have been banned from production in open-ended aquacultural systems since the mid-1980s, one of the late Ralph Abel's last acts as PFBC executive director.)

While the PFBC executive director himself has the final authority to ban the instate propagation and release of fish species, the Aquaculture Development Law seems to provide a modification of the excercise of that authority.

It directs that, "The commission shall determine which species of fish are allowed to be propagated in each watershed. (The law defines the state as comprised of five major watersheds, each to be treated separately. The PFBC may further subdivide those watersheds, if deemed necessary for the protection of indigenous or approved species, and make species propagation approval determinations based upon the increased distinction of watersheds.)

"On or before Jan. 31 of each year, the (PFBC) shall supply the (PDA) a current list of species approved for propagation and the conditions under which each species may be cultured.

"As the commission approves a new species for propagation throughout the year, it shall notify the department of the species and watersheds.

"Except triploid and other non-reproducting forms, species may be propagated in the same watersheds within which they are allowed to be stocked."

As an initial listing of approved species, the law sets it to be the PFBC's listing of approved species (as of Jan. 1, 1995) for propagation or stocking within those watersheds.

The law sets up separate registrations and fees for the propagation of fish species, and for the sale or dealing of approved species.

The fee for registration to propagate species is $150 for five years. The fee for dealing those species is $50 for five years.

(A change from annual registration.)

Those who are registered to propagate species are automatically registered to sell them.

There are some health concerns included in the law.

"Transportation of species of fish into his commonwealth is limited to sources of species whose health inspection reports have already been approved by the department (PDA)."

Poultry Association Faces Challenges

Ambassador, for both county and state events.

The 17-year-old has received publicity for her egg research pasteurization project, for which she has received awards from the Science and Technology Engineering Fair and from the Navy and Army for applied science.

Sarah's research also opened the door for her to attend the Pa. Governor's School held at Penn State during the summer.

Sarah was pleased and challenged by the opportunity to work in a real college lab. The experience is steering her toward food science and poultry studies after high school graduation.

Sarah believes that media coverage of Salmonella Enteritidis has caused more concern among the public than necessary.

"I want to reassure people that eggs are safe to eat as long as handled properly," Sarah said.

She also looks forward to educating children about the industry. "Children are the future of the world and of the industry. Before I was a teen, I knew nothing about eggs and I have gotten so excited through my research," she said.

Sarah said that the Association deserves the respect of the public. "I want to give back into the industry by supporting your causes as you did mine," Sarah said of the industry's help with her egg research project.

On behalf of the board, George Georges presented Sarah with a $1,000 scholarship for her work as ambassador.

The poultry food stand at the Ephrata Fair raised $4,377 in profits for the Association this year. The profits were lower than other years because of weather-related problems. A golf outing also raised funds for the association.

The Association's annual banquet was attended by about 350 producers and industry-related people. Matillio encouraged both sides to work together for the good of not only the industry but also the individual.

While a business must be profitable and 30-year-old chicken houses are hard to compete with a new facility, Mattilio reminded the audience that both sides are in the business to make money and do what's right.

"Keep lines of communication open. You have an obligation to give sufficent notification of any changes being made," Mattilio said of contract agreements.

Mattilio, who works as a loan officer for First Union National Bank, will continue a second term as president of the organization. Appointed to help him are Rich Roenigk of York Ag Products, vice president; Doug Metzler of Melhorn Sales and Service, secretary; and Andy Long of Biomune, treasurer.

Newly elected board members include Nelson Groff, Heritage Poultry; Dan Heller, Flint Rock Farms; Roni Clark, C&M Farm Services; Troy Eckert, Wenger Feeds; and Jay Sahannon, Keystone Farm Credit.

For lifetime achievements for the poultry industry, two men received awards. The first was Dr. Wilson Miller, the county's only private practice poultry veterinarian. Dr. John Schwartz, director for Lancaster County Extension, said that Miller has provided 48 years of leadership in fighting avian diseases and has established better working conditions between the poultry industry and the vet profession.

The other lifetime achievement award winner was W. Dale Anderson, who worked years in the grain and feed business and was the first to introduce liquid feed to this area. After Anderson established York Ag Products, he developed the calcium chip, which has been a mainstay for the poultry industry. In addition, Anderson has always been a strong supporter of many events for poultry groups in the state.

The Elizabethtown FFA Poultry Judging Team was honored for winning state competition and advancing to national competition.

Team members attending the banquet included Ladd Robinson, Denise Bollinger, and Jason Wagner.

Leading the county Poultry Association during the upcoming year is this team, from left, John Mattilio, president; Rich Roenigk, vice president; Doug Metzler, secretary; and Andy Long, treasurer.

Program To Hold Horse Show

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County 4-H Therapeutic Riding Program will be holding its end-of-the-year horse show on Saturday, Oct. 31, from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. here at the Friendly Horseman's Club.

Lunch will be available at the show.

For more information about the show or directions to the club, contact Nancie Doyle at (717) 687-8547 or Libby Craver at (717) 569-7734.

The Lancaster County 4-H Therapeutic Riding Program is available to children and adults with a variety of disabilities. Therapeutic riding offers many benefits to the students, including an improvement in their balance, strength, range of motion, coordination and self confidence.

The program has four sessions which run from spring through fall in sessions of six weeks with approximately 30 students in each session. Lessons are individualized to the needs of the student. Riders range from age 3 to age 60. Riders are referred to the club by several organizations, including Schreiber Pediatric Rehab Center of Lancaster, the S June Smith Center, Community Services, the Lancaster MH-MR program. Some students receive a referral from their doctor or physical therapist.

The end-of-year show provides the students an opportunity to demonstrate to their family and friends the progress they have made over the course of the sessions. Riders demonstrate their skill in an equitation class and also in an obstacle course which involves a variety of turns and stops that the rider must ask their horses to do.

Shelled Corn, Ear Corn and Snaplage - What's the Difference?

Often times dairy producers who are low on corn, look to High Moisture Ear Corn or Snaplage to extend their feed supply. HM Ear Corn and Snaplage will extend tonnage -- but what is the nutritional value of each? How much effective-fiber does the cob and husk provide in the ration?

First, let's define exactly what each feedstuff contains.

High Moisture Shelled Corn - basically clean corn grain harvested at an increased moisture level (25%-30%).

High Moisture Ear Corn - corn grain and cob only (27%-35% whole ear moisture) - usually harvested with a corn husker or combine with special sieves.

Snaplage - corn grain, cob, husk, and some stalk material (27%-38% moisture) - usually harvested by placing a combine header on a forage harvester.

As you include more plant material along with the corn, the overall energy level (Mcal) decreases due to the dilution of higher energy grain with lower energy parts such as cob and husk (Table 1)

Table 1 - Average nutrient composition of high moisture shelled corn, high moisture ear corn, and snaplage.*

	High Moisture Shelled Corn	High Moisture Ear Corn	Snaplage
Dry Matter (DM) %	72	72	62
Crude Protein % of DM	10	8.9	8.7
NDF, % of DM	11	27	32
Lignin, % of NDF	3	7	8
Fat, % of DM	4.3	3.7	3 6
NE (L) (Net Energy) (Mcal/lb DM)	0.92	0.80	0.75

Effective fiber increases chewing, rumination, and production of saliva to buffer the rumen and prevent acidosis. What determines whether the fiber in a feedstuff is "effective" or not depends on particle size, fiber digestibility, and bulk density. Ground HM Ear Corn and Snaplage have little effect on chewing because of the small particle size and increased rate of passage While HM Ear Corn and Snaplage will increase the overall fiber level of a ration, they contribute little to effective fiber.

Recommended Neutral Detergent Fiber (NDF) levels for high producing dairy cows are 25% to 30% of the ration dry matter, and 30% to 36% for mid or late lactation cows. HM Ear Corn and Snaplage contain higher levels of NDF than HM Shelled Corn. Included in this increase of NDF is an increase of lignin, which is completely indigestible by animals.

Table 2 shows three separate rations, one with HM Shelled Corn, one with HM Ear Corn, and one with Snaplage. As you can see, the overall net energy per pound is decreased with Ear Corn and Snaplage, while NDF is increased. This decrease in overall net energy will not support the desired 100 lbs. per day which the ration was originally formulated for. The addition of more corn to offset this decrease in energy can result in unnecessary gut fill and hamper intake on high producing dairy cows. HM Ear Corn may supply the necessary energy for mid to late lactation, lower producing cows, but not for high producing, early lactation animals.

Along with this increased energy also comes starch which is more soluble in the rumen. However, one must be cautious to not overfeed this readily available starch and cause an acidosis condition in the rumen

Table 2 - Rations in which HM Shelled Corn is replaced on a pound-for-pound basis with HM Ear Corn or Snaplage (formulated for a 1350 lb. Holstein cow producing 100 lb. of milk at 60 days in milk).*

	Pounds of Dry Matter (DM) Ration 1	Pounds of Dry Matter (DM) Ration 2	Pounds of Dry Matter (DM) Ration 3
High Moisture Shelled Corn (0.92 MCal/lb)	15	0	0
High Moisture Ear Corn (0.80 Mcal/lb)	0	15	0
Snaplage (0.75 Mcal/lb)	0	0	15
Alfalfa Haylage	15	15	15
Corn Silage	10	10	10
Whole Cottonseed	6	6	6
Protein Supplement	8	8	8
Mineral and Vitamin Premix	1	1	1
	Ration Composition	Ration Composition	Ration Composition
NE(L) (Net Energy Mcal/lb)	0.80	0.76	0.75
NDF (% of DM)	27	34	37

Basically, considering the lack of effective fiber, low digestibility of fiber from the cob and husk, High Moisture Ear Corn and Snaplage is not as efficient as High Moisture Shelled Corn in normal corn silage/haylage rations for high producing dairy cows trip he took over the weekend to Poland reminded him of the importance of cooperatives to all of the people of Pennsylvania.

Pa. Cooperatives Council Recognizes Outstanding Efforts

Leadership development is of major concern to the PCC, and Hayes said that "leadership" and "cooperation" are two key words to any community of people seeking to better their collective lives.

"I made the trip to Poland and could see, once again standing on the lands of Poland, how lucky we are (in Pennsylvania) to have cooperatives," Hayes said.

He compared the current state of agricultural production and common technology to that of the United States 50 to 75 years ago.

"We know that much of what United State's agriculture is now is because people banded together," he said, adding that by forming cooperatives it has been proven that it is possible to achieve for all what none could achieve alone for himself.

Hayes said that, for the Polish people, "Russians turned 'cooperative' into a dirty word.

"Polish people are very adverse to embark ... in cooperatives," he said, explaining that the Polish repulsion to the word "cooperative" is because of the way the concept was twisted into domination, withholding of individual education, growth and experience and abuse under the former Soviet Union rule by the Communist Party.

Poland was one of the first countries under the control of the former Soviet Union to seek free markets and elections.

Despite the Polish experience with "cooperatives" under Communism, Hayes said there is no doubt that rural America, especially Pennsylvania, would not have been able to achieve the high standard of living.

He referred to rural services provided through cooperative ventures, such as with electricity, agricultural services and commodities, fuel, food, etc.

In order to be successful, cooperation depends upon strong, developed leadership, Hayes said.

Hayes said that Pennsylvania's cooperative's have been wise to have for so long fostered and nurtured leadership as part of its purpose.

He said the future of Pennsylvania will rely on leadership development performed now. Poland needs to develop its leaders, he said.

"As that country moves ahead, it's going to need leaders," he said. He said that the past weekend reinforced the observation of how strong leadership and cooperation have made America strong, that healthy and encouraged leadership development has allowed local communities to be strong, and states to be strong.

"A free society is no stronger than 'we,' the people," he said.

In another presentation, Dennis Hatfield, senior leadership consultant for the Gallup Organization, discussed his organization's philosophy toward leadership.

According to Hatfield, while 97 percent of the Gallup Organization's public recognition is because of the polls often referred to in the media and other information sources, that work only represents about 2 percent of the income for the organization.

Much of what Gallup does is serve as a consultant for businesses, he said.

Hatfield said the company's philosophy is, "Every individual is uniquely and profoundly talented."

In brief, Hatfield said that humans around the world and through time have recognized and associated certain talents in individuals — such as musical, story telling or some other mathematical or scientific ability — as setting those people apart from the rest as uniquely talented.

In essence, he said that people in general tend to think not of more common talents, or even outstanding talents in common tasks, as equal in importance to entertaining or comprehensive talents.

That, he said, undermines self-confidence and leadership development.

He said that people tend to dwell on what they lack and not on their strengths. Good leadership is built by building on an individual's strengths and talents and developing his individual style of leadership.

He said it's a waste of time to try to imitate somebody else, because that individual is unique and their approach — their own custom-fitted suit — won't provide a comfortable fit for anyone else.

The Gallup Organization can measure talent, Hatfield said, through a series of questions designed to determine areas of talent in individuals.

He said that as a business consultant, Gallup seeks not to change people or "fix" them, but to help people find there way to creating a productive and satisfying working arrangement.

He explained that productive work is closely related to the level of satisfaction of the workers, and that money is only a long-term satisfier for those people who are not willing to become involved with their work or own talents, but are looking for a source of money to support other interests and needs.

Good leadership (and essentially good employee development) is based on woktalent, he said is o

He said that everything that Gallup does is research based, and he offered a formula the organization developed to measure productivity per person:

Talent X (R1+E+R2) = P

Where R1 = relationship of individual with other workers.

E = Expectations given the worker.

R2 = Recognitions and rewards for work.

P = Productivity per person.

The purpose of the talk and formula seemed to all support that happy and productive workers are those who believe their leaders, are trained properly and matched well to the job, know what is expected, and are appropriately rewarded.

Deputy Secretary Russell Redding discussed the progress of a steering committee organized to look into the possible development of a Pennsylvania Rural Cooperative Development Center.

Essentially, the work of the committee has been to develop the concept for a central information center for aiding and nurturing the development of rural cooperatives by acting as a source of where to go to get things done, instead of how to get things done.

Redding said there are already plenty of how-to guides to cooperative development, but there is no guide to where to go to get the services or to find out about and obtain all the proper legal compliances, such as permits, etc.

The center would serve as a medium for networking for cooperatives.

"Pennsylvania currently has a valuable core of organizations and resources working on cooperative development and rural development initiatives," Redding said. "However, they are currently working with little coordination, resulting in missed opportunities.

"It's the Steering Committee's belief Pennsylvania could benefit from the development and coordination of a Cooperative Development Center," he said.

The mission of the center would be to "... develop and coordinate a network of private, public and educational entities to improve the delivery of cooperative development assistance," he said.

As the committee has been progressing, it met with Pennsylvania's federal representative delegation and discussed federal support. Redding said that Sen. Arlen Spector, show served on the Senate Ag Appropriations Committee, was very supportive and influential in getting language passed that directs the USDA to consider Pennsylvania's application for a grant to help with developing the center.

In other business, three awards were presented during the awards luncheon.

Hal F. Doran Cooperative Business Education Award was presented to Donald H. Schriver, executive vice president with Dairy Farmers of America. He is responsible for international marekting, government and public affairs, communications, corporate relations and new business development.

He works with the National Milk Producers Federation, SECO Dairies Inc., and the U.S. Dairy Export Council.

Schriver is also vice chairman and executive committe member on the board of directors for the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, past president of the Ohio Council of Cooperatives, and past chairman for the American Institute of Cooperation.

According to the program, "As a cooperative industry leader, Don is a strong advocate and supporter of cooperative education and leadership development programs."

The awared was presented by David Blandford, Penn State University professor and head of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology.

N. Alan Bair, director of the Cooperative Business Education Program, presented the Cooperative Education Award to Gerald Phillips, of Quarryville, a senior loan officer with Keystone Farm Credit.

A 1972 graduate of Delaware Valley College, he received a bachelor's degree in dairy husbandry and teaching certification in vocational agriculture from Penn State.

He spent his career in agriculturally related fields. He taught vocational agriculture at Pequua Valley and Lampeter-Strasburg school districts; was involved in feed an crop sales with Agway; managed a Purina feed dealership; and has more than 15 years in agricultural lending with Farm Credit.

He is involved with the Lancaster County Agricultural Cooperative Council, the Southeast Regional Board of the Pennsylvania Cooperative Council, and several other committees.

Though not present, receiving the PCC Horizon Award was Andy Rill of Duncannon, who works as a systems manager for Digital Dining products with Phillips Office Products.

He was recognized for his long-term and continued involvement and support with the leadership training offered through the PCC. He was a scholar at the PCC Summer Institute, its leadership development program, years ago. He returned consistently to help with the program.

He currently provides leadership for the Institute scholar staff, a group of returning scholars who have attended the National Institute on Cooperative Education (NICE).

Rill and his wife also have served as chaperones for Pennsylvania sholars attending NICE.

Maryland's Shorthorn, Hereford Associations To Sell Calves

WALKERSVILLE, Md. — Two of Maryland's beef breed registry organizations have announced plans for a 7 p.m., Oct. 31, club calf sale to be held at the Frederick Fairgrounds in Frederick.

The Maryland Hereford Association and the Maryland Shorthorn Association have announced their partnership in presenting the 1998 Dynamic Duo Spotlight Calf Sale, at which 40 hand-selected Shorthorn and Hereford steer calf project animals are to be sold.

There are to be two incentive drawings, each worth $100 toward the purchase of any steer calf in the sale, held at the start of the calf sale.

All junior exhibitors who purchased a steer in last year's sale, and 41 additional juniors who have registered for a buyer's number at this year's sale are to eligible for the drawing.

As part of the sale requirements, each steer to be sold has been halter-broken, dehorned, wormed, and vaccinated for blackleg, BVD, IBR, PI3, and BRSV, and meets all state health requirements.

Also, all steer calves purchased at the sale are eligible to be entered in their respective breed organization's steer incentive or futurity program.

The Maryland Shorthorn Association's incentive program pays $50 to the champion Shorthorn and $25 to the reserve champion finalists of several shows: the Eastern Regional Shorthorn Show; of all of the Maryland county fairs (limited to one incentive award per exhibitor at the county level); the Maryland State Fair; and the Eastern National Livestock Show.

In the Hereford breed, the calves are to be eligible for a contest offered through the Maryland Hereford Association. The association offers a futurity program that allows exhibitors of champion and reserve champion Hereford steers at Maryland fairs to have their names placed in a lottery drawing for two cash awards.

In addition to the project calf sale, this year's sale is to feature a Dynamic Duo Heifer Showcase area.

The Heifer Showcase area is to serve as a place where Hereford and Shorthorn breeders may display some of their top young heifers, to be available for private treaty purchases.

All of the showcase heifers are to have been born after September 1997 and qualify for the 1999 showing season. These heifers will not be sold through the auction ring.

Showcase offerings are not limited to purchase by 4-H members, as are those calves sold at auction.

However, any member of the Maryland Junior Shorthorn Association who is interested in a Showcase heifer is to receive an automatic $50 discount on the price, on sale night only.

For more information on the calf sale, call Bruce Bennett at (410) 775-0325; Cyndy Howes at (410) 775-2205; David Bowman at (301) 898-5152; or Thelma Mills at (301) 898-5366.

Chimtek Inner Liners are madeof volcanic pumice and high-tempertature refractory cements, Its round shape provides even temperature inside flue and contributes to efficient flow of smoke and flue gasses. The volcanic pumice in Chimteck liners adds considerable insulating value.

All three chimneyliner systems disbrtibuted by DS Machine Shop are of super design, super performance, and super value. With all their advantages these chimney systems often cost no more than ordinary chimneys. Write or call us for more specific liner information.

Chester Holstein Club Presents Awards

WEST FALLOWFIELD (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Holstein Association held its annual awards and election meeting Oct. 20 at the West Fallowfield Christian Day School.

According to Jane Pepple, with the association, there were 10 awards presented, including six youth awards, as well as an election of directors.

In the youth awards, the outstanding FFA member was Julie Sollenberger with the Owen J. Roberts Chapter.

Kevin Nolan, with the Octorara Chapter was named the outstanding FFA dairy student.

The Chester Holstein Club also has a program that recognizes the total dairy project accomplishment of junior members, including record book keeping and animal production and showing.

The top winner overall was Christy Guest. The top first year member was Drew Harrop.

In youth protein production awards, Erica Lloyd won in the first-lactation division with her Lundale Sandman Sara, with a 305-day record on a lactation started at 2 years, 2 months, with 26,456 pounds of milk, and 3.1 percent, or 825 pounds protein.

Bradley Guest had the top high protein producing mature cow, with his Century Oak Steady Elizabeth producing 29,031 pounds of milk, and 991 pounds of protein in 305 days, during a lactation started at 3 years, 4 months of age.

There were four adult production awards made.

The top protein producing first lactation winner was Ridge Star Bellewood Lana, owned by Jim and Peter Miller, owners of Ridge Star Farm. Lana made 34,020 pounds of milk, 929 pounds of fat, and 1,052 pounds of protein in a lactation started at 2 years, 2 months of age.

Breck-A-Dee Farm, owned by Ed Breckbill, had the top protein producing mature cow, Coleman-Crest Lincoln Lida. She made 35,616 pounds of milk, 1,264 pounds of fat, and 1,250 pounds of protein in a 305-day lactation started at 5 years, 6 months.

The Club member herd with the high BAA was Breck-A-Dee Farm with 108.1 percent. The BAA is a rating that compares the classification of the age class animals in a herd compared to the national average.

The high lifetime production award was presented to Victor Stoltzfus for his 11-year-old cow, Stolclifs Mindy, with 206,827 pounds of milk, 8,338 pounds of fat, and 6,964 pounds of protein.

In other business, re-elected as director was Victor Stoltzfus; while Ken Umble, and James "Rudy" Allen of Russelville, were newly elected.

Richard Hostetter was named state director representing the Chester Club.

IPM Takes Teamwork — Annual Report Shows Why

GENEVA, N.Y. — "IPM: It takes teamwork." This theme is spelled out in three ways in the 1998 New York State IPM Program Annual Report: brief update and status reports on current topics such as the Food Quality Protection Act and New York grower and consumer attitudes about IPM; stories introducing the teams of Cornell faculty, Cornell Extension educators, and growers who make IPM work in strawberries, nurseries, and field crops; and highlights of the year's research and demonstration projects in fruit, livestock and field crops, ornamentals, and vegetables.

Here is a "top ten" sampling of developments reported this year:

1. Injury from the "strawberry clipper," long thought to be a significant pest, has virtually no effect on strawberry yield for many varieties commonly grown in New York.

2. New York fresh-market tomato growers may cut pesticide use by 12.5 pounds per acre by using a disease forecasting model and increase their earnings by $3,000 per acre due to staking and mulching.

3. IPM scouting saved field crops growers $1,000 to $7,000 apiece.

4. Biological control of a major mite pest is being achieved in Long Island vineyards.

5. Treatment for two major grape diseases could be limited to a specific two- to three-week period during which grapes have been found to be vulnerable to them.

6. Moderate seeding rates may lead to healthier turfgrass stands than high seeding rates, while providing equivalent aestheteic results.

7. A new lawn grub "decision rule" could reduce the need for insecticides by 50-80 percent.

8. New insect-resistant varieties of alfalfa had higher yields, higher net value per acre, and lower insect damage than susceptible varieties in a year of unusually heavy insect pressure.

9. Adequate weed control was achieved in cabbage by substituting cultivation and cover crops for herbicides.

10. A survey of more than 200 sweet-corn growers in New York indicates that 69 percent of them have adopted at least half of the "IPM elements" defined for that crop.

Protecting Your Milk Price With BFP Options

Would you like to establish a floor price under the milk you sell? Well, the Dairy Options Pilot Program (DOPP) may provide you the opportunity to learn how to do that.

DOPP is designed to help dairy farmers learn how to use BFP options as a tool to manage milk price volatility. Using BFP options, you establish a floor BFP price, however, you still benefit if BFP prices rise. There are no margin calls, only a one time fee when you buy the option. The meetings listed below have been scheduled by Penn State Cooperative Extension of Chester and Lancaster Counties to discuss the basics of dairy options, to explain the Dairy Options Pilot Program initiated by USDA, and to help answer producer questions regarding options or the Pilot program.

Linda Funk welcomes guests to Wooly Acres Country Crafts. She did most of the remodeling of the barn herself to provide an attractive setting for her crafts.

Of Wooly Acres, Robert and Linda Funk invite visitors. Their philosophy: "If you can't come and sit; pause awhile and breath deep. The view is free."

Pause Awhile, Breath Deeply At Wooly Acres

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CONESTOGA (Lancaster Co.) — Some people inherit talent. Some acquire skills through perseverance and hard work.

Linda Funk possess both talent and perseverance.

She's taught herself to build a loom, to spin wool, to paint pastoral scenes of the family farm, and to renovate part of the 100-year-old barn into a delightful spot to house her Wooly Acres Country Craft Shop filled with quality crafts that she has made herself.

These include such unique items as hand carved Noah's Arks, musical boxes, and baskets woven from willow reed grown on the family farm.

Interspersed among her handcrafts are antique glassware, pieces of furniture that she has refinished, old linens, and aromatic candles.

Of the large array of quality crafts, Linda said, "There's not too much in here that I didn't make."

Typical of Linda's can-do attitude is the example of weaving with a harness loom.

"I got a couple of books to learn about weaving and decided it couldn't be too hard to made a loom myself. So, I tried it," Linda said.

Since then she has built four looms using wood she raided from a dumpster filled with scrap wood.

She spins yarn from the flock of sheep on the family farm. Spinning was inspired when her husband inherited an old-spinning wheel. Linda picked up a book on spinning, had the wheel fixed, and with a little guidance from a spinner who worked at the Landis Valley Museum was soon spinning.

"I picked it up right away. If you sing, 'Row, Row, Row Your Boat' to keep the right beat, it comes naturally."

Linda believes that she has inherited her do-it-yourself talent from her father.

Although her father died when she was only eight years old, she remembers watching him build things. She said, "He built a log house during the Depression of locust wood, which he cut from trees that had died from the diseased blight. No one else wanted the wood, so he got it free."

As a little girl, Linda recalls that she was always making something. "And I never stopped making things. It seemed like I was always making gifts to give away and people kept saying, 'You ought to open a craft shop.'"

After years of encouragement from acquaintances, Linda took the plunge about three years ago after some negative policy changes that were made at the company where she was employed.

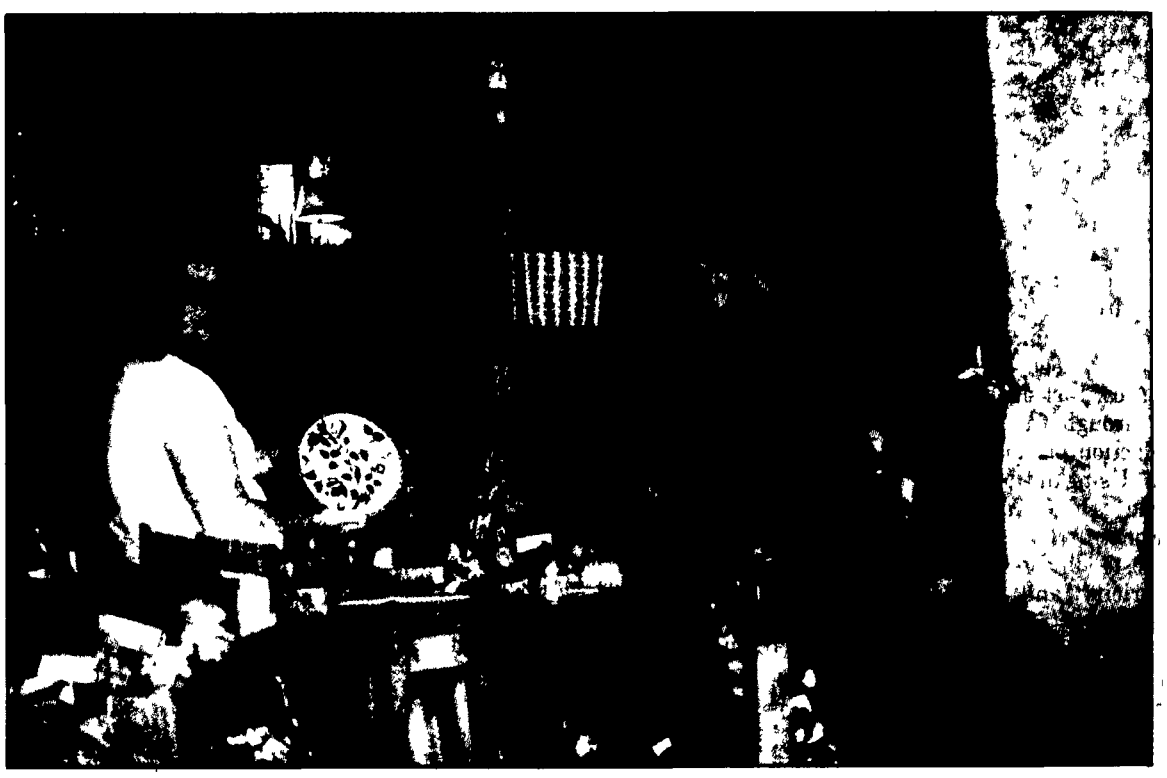
Because her husband was in the middle of harvesting and didn't have time to work on the barn, Linda used a saw, hammer, and plenty of muscle to turn the area of the barn used as an implement shed into a showcase for crafts. She tore out some partitions, installed drywall on some walls, and cleaned the wood and stones of some of the other areas. Now the walls are a mixture of exposed stone, drywall, and barn wood.

The shop includes a loft tastefully arranged with braided rag and hooked rugs, old wagon wheels, old linens, beeswax, a Christmas tree with handmade ornaments, tinware, raw wool, and other items.

Several small-paned windows allow sunlight into the shop, but one window opens to the barn where customers can admire the sheep during the birthing season.

Behind the shop is a workroom for Linda to work on a variety of projects in-between customers.

Linda also plays an active role at the nearby Conestoga Area Historical Society. Every other weekend she sits on the porch of the log home with her spinning wheel to answer visitors' questions.



A versatile and talented craftsperson, Linda does a lot of decorative painting on boxes, slates, and other items.

A loft and a back room offer additional space for Linda's crafts. She also sells antiques and collectible pieces such as glassware, linens, and even some furniture.

She and her husband Bob have two children and eight grandchildren. In addition to farming, Bob has worked full time for Lancaster Newspapers for the past 35 years. On the 50-acre farm, Bob grows corn, hay, wheat, and soybeans. The Funks also sell produce they grow on the farm.

"A farmer's lane leads to many wonders" is a saying inscribed on one of the hand-painted slates with a portrait of the farm, which Linda sells in the shop.

"I just got the idea for the saying while walking in the lane from getting the mail," said Linda, who is also known to awaken in the middle of the night with a creative idea to try.

Although the extent of Linda's talent can only be admired with a trip to Wooly Acres Country

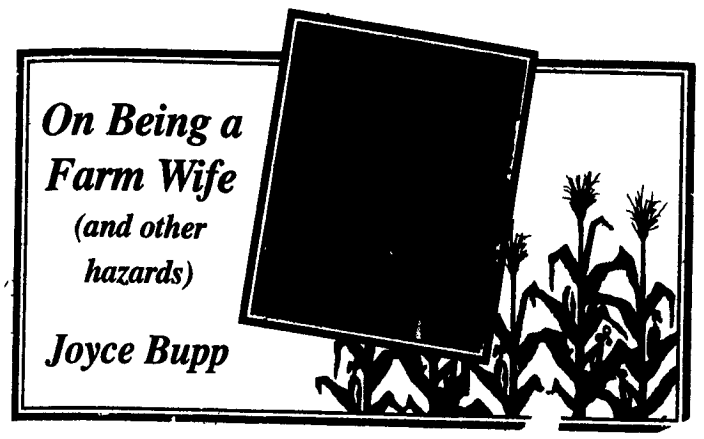
HOMESTEAD NOTES



Our city relatives find it surprising. Some of the younger generation never heard of it.

But some of us holdouts here in the hinterlands still like to do it. And, I'm one of 'em.

Weather permitting, I love to hang laundry outside.

Yes, it takes longer to pin each piece to the washline. Yes, the birds occasionally undo what was just done with the washing machine. Or do back what was just undone?

Whatever. It doesn't happen enough times to convert us us outside-laundry lovers to the inside appliance when the sun is shining and a breeze dancing through the back yard.

There's a distinct satisfaction that comes with glancing out the kitchen window and seeing a line of clean jeans, towels, tee shirts, and socks swinging gently back and forth under the trees. That's reinforced a little later when that wonderful, freshly-dried-in-a-sunny-breeze scent wafts up from each piece as you fold and stack it in the basket.

No matter what the detergent manufactures say, no synthetic fragrance comes close to touching that indefinable, all-natural, fresh scent. Like that of new-mown hay or a mow tucked full of fresh straw or corn pollinating on a hot August night, the perfume of sunshine-dried laundry can't be replicated by a chemical formula.

Nor can yanking a pile of clothes from the dryer come close to the entertainment value of handling them outside in our backyard. For instance, by assessing which equipment, driven by which operators, headed in what particular direction, I can usually come up with an educated guess as to what's on the farm and neighborhood agendas for the day.

In one corner of the yard, a lone, old rooster scratches for tasty tidbits hiding under a pile of leaves. One lone Canada goose rests on the sparkling surface of the pond, recovered, but still not flying great distances, victim of last year's first day of goose hunting season. And the single remaining aged guinea fowl goes sneaking off up around the upper side of the bank barn.

These three should all be with flocks, but age and circumstances have rendered them loners. While they aren't birds of a feather, they'd surely be less lonely if we could somehow get this trio to flock together.

Several cats hover about the yard, finally learning to tolerate one another. Monk, the housecat, joins me in the yard to stretch out in the sunshine under the drying clothes. Butch, our affectionate black-and-beige tabby, curls up in the washbasket for a snooze. And Midnight, the shiny-black, former stray, perches on the porch, still a trifle leery of the other two. Just have them accept being in sight of one another is progress.

The fields have regreened after several inches of rain rejuvenated the lagging alfalfa and spurred growth in the fall cover crop of rye. So once again the cows are being turned out daily for a couple hours of extra grazing, the all-natural way to harvest these fresh, tasty forages. Watching them hasten out over the green fields (behind temporary fencing), heads down munching young blades of grass is gratifying entertainment as I hang up a last laundry load of sheets and pillowcases.

Annuals in the border bloom with a fierce determination to make the most of these lingering days. A clump of tall dahlias sports fat, glow-yellow blossoms, flanked by red roses, purple clusters on the butterfly bush and zinnias in shades of fushia and pink. Bumble bees haunt the vivid-blue spikes of the salvia clumps, frantically storing up for the coming big chill. And a reflection of the yellows and reds of the woodlot trees shimmers over the pond.

So beautiful. So peaceful. So special because these seasonal moments are so fleeting.

As I snuggle in between freshly-washed, sun dried sheets at bedtime and inhale their earthy fragrance, it's obvious that "they" (as in "they say....") are right.

Some of the best things in life really are free.

Farming In The Old Days

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Children and adults can learn about agriculture prior to the 1930s in two new educational videotapes, available from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Narrated by Jerome Pasto, volunteer curator of the Pasto Agricultural Museum and associate dean emeritus in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, the videos walk viewers through the history of the production of small grains and corn. Using antique implements inside the museum, Pasto demonstrates how foods were harvested before the advent of electricity and power equipment.

"The videos are suitable for early grades of elementary school - or anyone interested in our agricultural heritage," Pasto says.

"Farming in the Old Days: Small Grains" describes how farmers produced, harvested and threshed small grains from 4000 B.C. to the 1930s. The 31-minute video traces early tools used for harvesting, including a 6,000-year-old clay sickle from the Tigris-Euphrates Valley, flails made of wood and leather and a winnowing tray that used windpower to clean the chaff from the grain.

"Farming in the Old Days: Corn," a 25-minute video, covers planting methods used by early Native Americans and pioneers, and traces progress in corn planting and harvesting through the 1930s. "This video traces progress in corn planting, from the 'poke-a-hole-in-the-ground' method, to a corn planter with hopper, to a horse-drawn corn planter," says Pasto.

The Pasto Agricultural Museum is an unusual museum located nine miles southeast of State College at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research center at Rock Springs. The museum houses more than 300 rare, antique implements once used for farming and homemaking. Items include early lamps made of animal fat and rushes, a charcoal-heated clothes iron and a dog-powered treadmill used to churn butter and wash clothes. For information about group tours, call (814) 865-2541, or send e-mail to pastoagmuseum@psu.edu.

For more information about the videos, contact Ag Information Services, The Pennsylvania State University, 119 Ag Administration Building, University Park, PA, 16802; phone (814) 865-6309; FAX (814) 863-9877. Price is $35 for one video, or $50 for both. Allow three weeks for delivery. Make checks payable to Penn State or include a purchase order.

Reading Before Six?

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) – "Learning to Read Before Six?" and informational workshop for child care providers will be held on Thursday, November 12 at 7:00 p.m. at the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office, 701 South Fourth Street, Towanda. Register by November 9. Call (717) 265-2896.

Wooly Acres

Crafts, Conestoga, there is another reason the trip is worth it. The farm is the perfect spot for families to get a glimpse of nature's bounty.

The winding lane leads to the red painted barn that is more than 100 years old. On the opposite side are grazing sheep with a scenic setting of trees and rolling hills, a large pond.

"Sheep are grazers and pygmy goats are browsers," Linda said of the combination used to keep both grass and weeds neatly trimmed.

During different seasons visitors can see Canada geese, osprey, and various species of ducks on the large pond. The songs of swallows, orioles, goldfinches, Indigo buntings, house finches, cardinals, and many more mingle with the croak of bullfrogs. Deer feed in early and evening hours along the wooded areas of the farm.

Linda tells prospective guests, "Visit our craft shop and enjoy our farm. If you can't come and sit, pause awhile and breath deep. The view is free."

Directions to Wooly Acres: From Lancaster, follow Rt. 324 or Route 741 to New Danville, south to Conestoga about three miles. Turn left at the Conestoga Post Office, go about one-fourth mile to Wooly Acres (130 River Corner Road) on the right. Phone (717) 872-2168.

All I Want Is A Debt-Free Holiday!

Each October, I hear myself as well as others around me making this statement: "All I want this year for the holidays is to be debt free the first of January!"

Have you made this statement or have had similar thoughts?

In the past several years, the use of credit cards has become a more predominant method by which to purchase holiday gifts as opposed to cash. Yes, it is convenient and you can keep track of your purchases easily, but it can become a potential risk for overspending. Most of this overspending comes from "spur-of-the-moment purchases.

According to Dahlstrom & Company, "For most families, debt is not built out of necessity. Rather, it is built on impulse."

Think about it. The last time you went grocery shopping how many items did you buy that were really a necessity? You probably could have taken a few things out of the cart at the check out counter. Most of us impulse buy, but do we take the time to cut down and make progress toward becoming "debt free?"

It takes a concerted effort to really stop impulse buying and put that extra money towards reducing debt.

Penn State Cooperative Extension's Money 2000 Newsletter reports that one out of every six families has a credit card problem and one out of every 10 families can only afford to make minimum monthly payments. Dahlstrom & Company also reports that the average American has nine credit cards and carries an outstanding balance of $1,850.

How many cards do you carry?

How much credit card debt do you have?

Could you be at risk this holiday season?

As you hear the holiday jingles, see the decorations, and begin making your long gift list, don't forget to plan out your spending. Try the following plan to make your new year debt-free or at least substantially lower than last year's debt load.

Here's the plan:

• Start by hiding or freezing your credit cards. (Freeze your cards in a block of ice–it will take some time to thaw, giving you time to think your purchase over.) Cut up credit cards and return them to the company with a letter closing your account.

• When eating out, plan to pay cash. Better yet, pack a sandwich and a drink and keep it in your car in a cooler. You can use the break in shopping and the extra money. This also gives you time to rethink a purchase not on your list that you've been considering.

• Eliminate as many trips to the mall as possible; don't keep mail order catalogs in your house. Throw them out the same day they arrive.

• Put cash in a money jar each time you reduce your spending. Apply the money saved monthly to the credit card with the smallest balance. Pay more than the minimum on each card or negotiate an affordable minimum with each creditor.

• Make a list of all gifts to be bought. Check out the sales and write down where each one is located. Only take enough cash along to buy the gifts on the list. Go home when you are finished. Don't browse through other stores.

• Don't take children along on your shopping trip unless they clearly understand that the only shopping to be completed will be what is on your list.

Above all else, don't ignore your January credit goal. Whether the goal is to reduce or eliminate debt, the only holiday greetings you want in your mail box in the new year is from friends and family – not creditors!

Whooo. . . Whooo?

YORK (York Co.) – "Who-whooo-who-whoooo" echoing into the black night of the woods bring feet, shuffling along a trail in Nixon County Park, to an abrupt stop. Hearts pound – the sound was startling. And imaginations wander...the supernatural? Martians?

No, the sound isn't hobgoblins or Martians, just human beings trying to get a closer look at the world of owls.

This is the idea of the Owl Walk coming to Nixon County Park on Friday, December 4, from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Francis Velazquez, Education Outreach Coordinator, said participants on the Owl Walk will join parks staff and volunteers form York Wildcare, a local raptor rehabilitation group, to learn the who, what and why of owls and their part in the natural world.

Velazquez said the program consists of hour-long indoor and outdoor segments; The indoor segment features a discussion on the owls found on the walk; how these birds live, what they feed on, and some basic background. During the indoor segment, York Wildcare will offer an "up close and personal" live introduction to several local species of owls. The outdoor segment includes a quiet, no flashlight hike to call for owls in Nixon County Park. Four species of owls could be present during the walk.

Those interested in joining the hike need to pre-register by calling (717) 428-1961. The hike is open to children ages 9 and up, but those under 16 years must be accompanied by a parent. Dress for the weather. Only flashlights with a deep red-tinted filter will be permitted. Also, donations will be accepted to help with York Wildcare's raptor rehabilitation program.

For more information, call (717) 428-1961.

Healthy Children

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) – "Healthy Provider/Healthy Child" is a free program for anyone who cares for other people's kids. It will be held Saturday, November 7 from 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. at Patterson Auditorium, Guthrie Campus, Sayre. Includes workshops on Nurturing Children's Mental Health and Preventing Infection in Child Care Settings, and a health fair with free health screening. Lunch provided Sponsored by Guthrie Healthcare System and Penn State Cooperative Extension of Bradford County. Call (717) 265-2896.

A good gardener knows when not to prune. Proper timing helps ensure young, vigorous wood on healthy plants.

Many deciduous trees and shrubs possess attractive bark, fruit or leaf color providing fall and winter enjoyment. Trees with attractive gray bark include American yellowwood, beech, elm, hackberry, hornbean, juneberry, mountain ash, red maple and saucer magnolia. Trees and shrubs with colored twigs include red-twig dogwood, japanese maple, sourwood and striped maple. Prune these plants in late fall, late winter or early spring.

Because most flower buds form on current or previous year's growth remove one-third of the oldest wood on healthy shrubs annually.

Old, neglected shrubs often require extensive pruning to rejuvenate or renew the plants. Proper rejuvenation pruning on lilac, privet and many of the spirea badly overgrown plants to a young, natural growth habit. Simply cut back at the base of the shrub. Replace the plant if needed with a new, more vigourous plant.

Although fall is okay, a better time to rejuvenate large, overgrown shrubs is late winter or early spring (March or early April) before growth begins. While heavy pruning in late winter or early spring will reduce or eliminate the flower display on forsythia, lilac,mock orange, butterfly bush and vanhoutte spirea for a year or two, it's best to sacrifice the flowers for the long-term health of the shrub.

If spring-flowering shrubs need only light pruning, prune them immediately after bloom. Pruning immediately after bloom allows gardeners to enjoy the spring flower display and gives the shrubs adequate time to initiate new flower buds for next season.

Summer-flowering shrubs, like spirea, bloom in summer of the current year's growth. Prune these shrubs in late winter or early spring. Summer-flowering shrubs pruned at this time will still bloom in summer.

After pruning, avoid using pruning paint or wound dressing. Research suggests that wounds heal more effectively without the application of pruning paints. These products may be a waste of time and money when used for purposes other than aesthetics.

Keep your pruning tools sharp and clean. Pruning shears with curved blades work best on small branches up to about 1/2" diameter; use lopping shears (long-handled pruners) for branches up to about 1 1/2". Beyond that size, use a pruning saw. Avoid the temptation to tackle a too-large branch with a too-small tool. The cut will be ragged and can permanently damage the tool so that it never cuts well again.

Wolfe Appointed To Urban Horticulture

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) – Penn State Cooperative Extension in Dauphin County was announced the appointment of Kathy Wolfe to program assistant in urban horticulture.

This assignment is a part-time two-year position that was possible through university funds and a grant for rural and urban initiatives.

"We have been wanting to expand cooperative extension's programs in the urban communities, and are extremely pleased with this appointment to this important position." Said Patricia Powley, extension director in Dauphin County.

"Kathy will provide leadership and educational support for the development and implementation of gardening programs for children and adults in urban communities. Her work will focus on horticulture programs in uptown Harrisburg and at the Dauphin County prison."

Wolfe has been involved in cooperative extension since 1987 when she became a Master gardener volunteer. She began her horticulture career in 1988 at the U.S. National Arboretum in Washington, D.C. In 1990 she was hired as a program assistant in Cumberland County extension where she coordinated the Master Gardener program. Wolfe joined the Dauphin County extension staff in 1994 to coordinate a special project for senior centers, and in 1997 became public relations coordinator for the extension office. Wolfe is a graduate of Lock Haven State College with a bachelor's degree in education.

Discover Sweet Potatoes' Goodness

When Columbus discovered America in 1492, he also discovered a yellow-brown vegetable, the sweet potato. When he returned home, his cargo included a load of the delicious, edible roots.

By 1648, sweet potatoes were a leading crop in the Virginia colony, and by 1900, more than 200 varieties were grown in the South.

Today, the sweet potato ranks number one in nutrition according to the Center for Science in the Public Interest (CSPI), a nonprofit, independent organization seeking to improve the public's health by offering reliable nutrition information and by working to reform the nation's food and health polices.

CSPI gave foods points for content of dietary fiber, naturally occurring sugars and complex carbohydrates, protein, vitamins A and C, iron, and calcium. Points are deducted for fat content (especially saturated fat), sodium, cholesterol, added refined sugars, and caffeine. The higher the score, the more delicious the food.

ALL AMERICAN SWEET POTATO PIE

8-ounces cream cheese, softened
2 eggs, beaten
¾ cup sugar
2 prepared 9-inch graham cracker pie crusts
2 small packages instant vanilla pudding mix
¾ cup milk
2 cups peeled, cooked mashed sweet potatoes
Dash ground cinnamon
1½ cups whipping cream
½ cup chopped nuts (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a medium sized bowl, mix together well the cream cheese and eggs. Add the sugar and beat until fluffy. Spread the mixture into the pie crusts and bake 20 minutes; let cool. Meanwhile, in a large bowl, stir together pudding mix and milk until smooth and thick. Add the sweet potato and cinnamon and mix well; fold in one cup whipped cream. Spread sweet potato mixture on cooled pies. Garnish with remaining half cup whipped cream and sprinkle with chopped nuts. Store in refrigerator. Always remember to use real dairy products.

Spicy Substitutions

As you might suspect, pumpkin pie spice is really just a combination of other spices, mixed together for your convenience. To make your own, just mix 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger, 1/4 teaspoon ground allspice and 1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg.

There are all sorts of spices, seasonings and other foods that you can make yourself if you don't have them in your cupboard. If you can't make exactly what you're looking for, you can find acceptable alternative in many cases. Many cookbooks and cooking guides have lists of substitutions. Here are a few:

- Poultry seasoning. Mix 3/4 teaspoon crushed dried sage, plus 1/4 teaspoon crushed dried thyme or dried marjoram.
- Apple pie spice. Mix 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg, 1/8 teaspoon ground allspice, and a dash ground cloves or ginger.
- Chili powder. Try using a dash of hot pepper sauce plus oregano and cumin. You can also add coriander, cloves and/or allspice — there's not "one" chili powder recipe out there.
- Five spice powder. Use equal parts cinnamon, cloves, fennel seed, star anise and black pepper.
- Allspice. Ironically, allspice is not a combination of different spices. It comes from allspice berries, which grow on the West Indian allspice trees. However, in a pinch, you can combine 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon plus 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves, and you'll have an acceptable substitute.
- Shallots. Use minced onions, flavored with half of a small clove or minced garlic.
- Cumin. Once source says acceptable substitutes for a teaspoon of cumin are 1/3 teaspoon of ground anise and 2/3 teaspoon of ground caraway seeds, or 1 teaspoon ground fennel. (These might very well do the trick, but if you have anise, ground caraway seeds and fennel, why in the world don't you have cumin?)
- Dried ginger. Combine 1/3 teaspoon mace and 2/3 teaspoon fine-chopped lemon peel. (Again, you're probably more likely to have ginger than mace and lemon peel.)

To keep your spices fresher and more flavorful, store them in the freezer. Both the cold and the lack of light will keep them fresh.

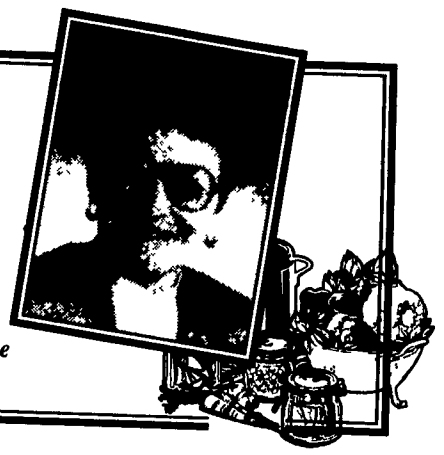
Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Many of us are already thinking about the holidays. We want to get the house ready for friends and family members who will be visiting. One area of concern to the cook will be the kitchen.

Will it pass Aunt Mabel's white glove inspection?

More importantly, could it pass a food safety inspection?

If not, these guidelines will get your kitchen in tip-top shape for the holidays.

Start with the freezer. Is it frozen-over or jam-packed with foods? If so, it will not hold frozen meat and poultry at safe freezer temperatures 0 degrees F or below. When you defrost the freezer, examine frozen items carefully and discard foods that have changed in appearance or texture. When returning food to the freezer check package dates and sort items so that you can use them within recommended storage times.

Next, the refrigerator. If you have leftover meat and poultry dishes, use them as soon as possible. These foods can be stored in the refrigerator from three to four days. Fresh meat and poultry should be used within one to three days. Also check the "sell-by" or "use-by" date on mayonnaise, salad dressing and other foods which need refrigeration. Throw away outdated, moldy and obviously spoiled foods.

To get rid of the odor that may linger from spoiled foods, wash the refrigerator with baking soda and water and put a box of baking soda in it to absorb odors. To store food safely in the freshly cleaned refrigerator be sure that the temperature is set at 40 degrees F or below to prevent most bacterial growth. Tightly cover all foods and use them within the recommended storage time. Don't overload the refrigerator. Cold air must be able to circulate to keep foods at optimal temperatures.

Countertops, sinks, and utensils need extra care. To keep bacteria from spreading from raw to cooked foods, wash the countertop, sink and utensils after they have been used to prepare raw meat and poultry. Carefully scrub, clean and sanitize plastic cutting board. Old wooden cutting boards should be used as hot pads and not for cutting food because bacteria can harbor in the grooves left by the knife. A hard, non-porous cutting board is better for preventing the spread of bacteria. Also, wash kitchen linen often and throw away old sponges.

Kitchen appliances should work properly. Use the oven thermometer to check the temperature in your conventional oven. Use a meat thermometer to cook meat and poultry to the proper internal temperatures. Poultry is thoroughly cooked at 180 F to 185 F; beef and other meats should reach 160 F. For questions about meat and poultry call the USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline: 1-800-535-4555.

Check the microwave oven too. Stale food particles left in the microwave can interfere with cooking time. To clean the microwave oven, place a mixture of lemon juice and water inside the oven and turn it on. The steam will condense on the oven surface and make food much easier to remove. The lemon juice will absorb odors.

Copper Deficiency Linked To Heart Disease

COLUMBUS, Ohio — You've always heard that a good diet is important to health, but research is showing it could be even more critical than you thought. Researchers are focusing on questions on how food and nutritional components of food affect our physical well-being, and they're finding answers that will ultimately help bridge the gap between the clinical practices of nutritionists and physicians.

Denis M. Medeiros, professor of human nutrition and food management at Ohio State University, first delved into research that addressed the realms of nutrition and medicine because of his interest in the effect of nutritional copper deficiency on the heart.

After 14 years of study, Medeiros' results show that low levels of the dietary mineral are linked to aneurysms, heart enlargement, raised cholesterol levels and impeded blood flow. The subject is considered so important that the National Institutes of Health awarded him a $263,000 Senior National Research Service Award from the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute for his study on "Cardiac Characteristics in Copper Deficiency."

The overall thrust of Medeiros' research is to unlock the molecular mechanism whereby copper restriction leads to heart enlargement, or cardiac hypertrophy. Mitochondria, which are the major energy producing structures of heart muscle cells, proliferate when deprived of copper, leading to heart enlargement.

In an enlarged heart, 60 percent of the heart muscle cells are the mitochondria, as compared to 40 percent in a normal heart. The grant is designed to determine why this happens.

Medeiros said the results have important implications for people born with genetic heart defects that affect the mitochondria. "The effect of copper deficiency is expected to stimulate formation of the genetic defect," Medeiros explained. "I'll be looking at why the mitochondria proliferate. This is an excellent example of how expertise in nutrition research can be used to investigate a medical condition." In conversations between Medeiros and staff at the National Institutes of Health, he learned that the federal agency considers it critical to promote dialogue between nutritionists and physicians since the two groups presently speak different languages and have different focuses in their practices.

"For example, for heart problems, nutritionists tend to focus primarily on cholesterol, but other heart diseases are affected by different aspects of nutrition, such as valvular diseases, mitochondria diseases and connective tissue disorders," Medeiros said. "In most cases, neither physicians or nutritionists are adequately prepared to help patients with the nutritional aspects of these diseases."

In an animal study, Medeiros and colleagues learned that within three months, diets that are marginally low in nutritional copper resulted to damage in to cardiac tissue, particularly to the mitochondria Heart tissue was destroyed even though the animals grew normally.

"The typical American diet is not low enough in nutritional copper to be considered deficient," Medeiros said, "but it is often marginal." Copper is particularly important for people who are growing Medeiros said, so this research has the greatest implications for infants, small children, teens, and pregnant women. He lists mushrooms, liver, shellfish, nuts, whole grain, and even chocolate as good dietary sources of copper. Note however, that although a gram of copper a day is considered optimal, more is not better Medeiros warns that consuming too much copper can be toxic.

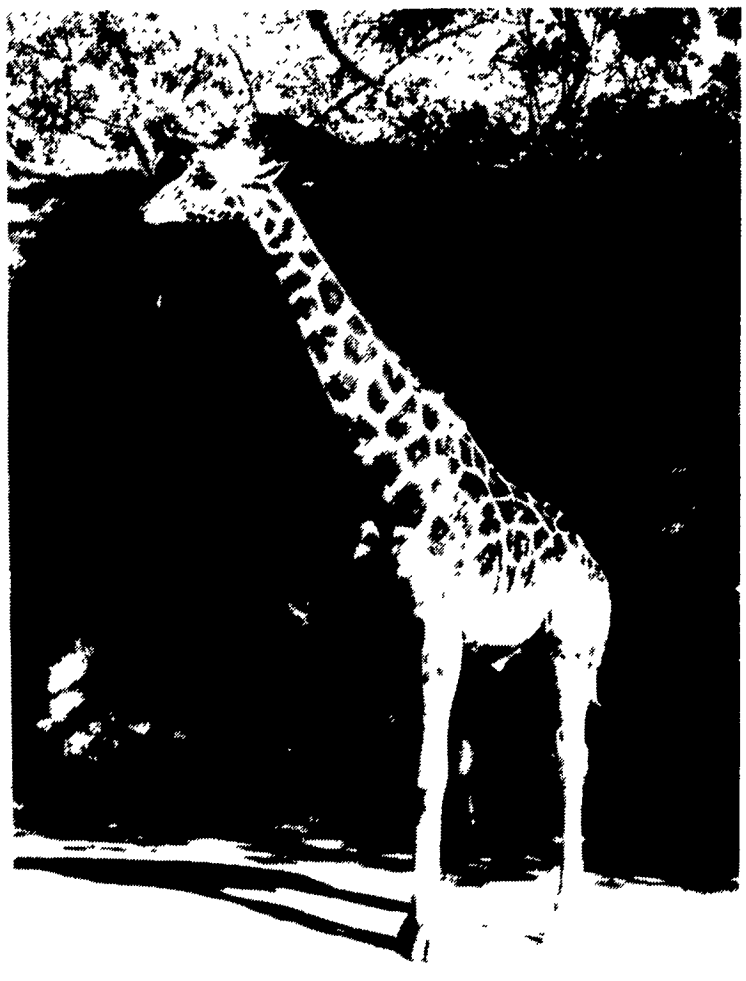
Visit Philadelphia Zoo

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.) — Perhaps you think of visiting the zoo as a summertime activity, but the zoo is open year-round and offers some advantageous for visiting off-season.

Polar bear is considering taking a cool splash.

During the cooler months, most of the animals are more alert and active, much to the delight of visitors.



With such a long throat, does the giraffe have difficulty swallowing?

The animals are more alert and active on cooler days. The zoo is not as crowded with visitors. If you don't mind bundling up in winter coats, you can even visit the Philadelphia Zoo free every Sunday from December through February from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Admire the polar bears swimming in the water. Laugh at the peppy penquins splashing in the water. Search for the white crocodile. The clumsy hippo lumbering toward the water is easy to spot. King Cobras is one of the world's deadliest snakes and can be seen in the recently renovated Amphibian and Repitle House.

For a real thrill, take an elephant ride.

"The elephant put his ears back and touched by legs," said one brave elephant rider.

How about a camel ride?

If you aren't quite brave enough to climb aboard a tall camel or a gigantic elephant, you may want to try a pony ride offered in the Petting Zoo part for children.

Try to schedule your visit in order to watch the lion and tiger feedings. The animals sometimes give deafening roars, that sends shivers through you.

During the month of November, lion and tiger feedings are 3 p.m. weekdays, and 4 p.m. weekends. From December through March, feedings are 3 p.m. daily.

During the month of November, the zoo is opend 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. From December through February, hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. March hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. daily. April through October, hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:45 p.m.

For more information about the zoo, call (215) 243-5200 or after business hours, call (215) 243-1100.

For a real thrill, take an elephant ride. In addition to the entrance fee, it costs $4 to ride the elephant and $3 to ride a camel.

Grilled Cheese Travels Around The World And Back

NEW YORK, N.Y. — If your idea of grilled cheese is two pieces of buttered white bread filled with melted American cheese, think again! Many countries have their own versions of America's popular grilled cheese that can be found in the ethnically diverse neighborhoods that give New York its namesake–the melting pot. (For our purposes, we define any type of cheese melted between two pieces of bread as a grilled cheese sandwich, no matter what else goes into it.

What is it that makes grilled cheese so popular? According to a survey by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., the number one way people like to eat cheese is slightly melted. And with a wide variety of cheeses, breads and other fillers available, possibilities are endless.

Grilled Cheese has become such a classic sandwich that the Comfort Diner in New York City dedicates a whole month to promoting it. Owner Ira Freehof says, "We found grilled cheese was so popular in the winter, we devoted the month of February to it." Each day a different type grilled cheese sandwich is featured on the menus with a complimentary cup of tomato soup. "It's one of our favorite promotions. It was fun and surprisingly not difficult coming up with 28 different sandwiches. We even have enough recipes for this year's promotion. But our plain old American cheese on white bread is still the number one seller. I guess it reminds customers of their childhood," he added.

HAM & CHEESE CREPE

1 buckwheat crepe
2 ounces ham
2 ounces Swiss cheese

For buckwheat crepes, use ready-made crepe mix from store or see recipe that follows. Brush a 12-inch non-stick skillet lightly with oil and heat over moderately high heat until hot but not smoking. Remove skillet from heat. Working quickly, stir batter and fill a 1/4 cup measure. Pour batter into skillet, tilting and rotating skillet quickly to cover bottom. Cook crepe over moderately high heat until bottom is golden and top appears almost dry, about 1 minute. Turn crepe over and put ham and cheese in center. Fold in edge of crepe and cook crepe 30 seconds or until golden brown.

MOZZARELLA, BASIL, ROASTED PETTERS, AND TOMATO ON FOCACCIA

From Focacceria

1 tomato or rosemary focaccia
4 slices fresh mozzarella
6 pieces roasted red peppers
5 slices of garden tomato fresh basil, chopped oregano
virgin olive oil

Split focaccia bread horizontally. On bottom half, place sliced fresh mozzarella cheese and top with roasted red peppers. Place in oven or broiler until cheese is slightly melted. (The top half of focaccia gets placed in oven also). Layer tomato slices, then basil and oregano and top sandwich with virgin olive oil. Place remaining half of focaccia bread on top of sandwich and cut in half.

BUCKWHEAT CREPES

2 tablespoons unsalted butter
3/4 cup plus 1 tablespoon buck wheat flour
1/3 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1-1/2 cups milk
3 large eggs

In a small saucepan, cook butter over moderately low heat until golden brown. In a mixing bowl, sift flours and salt. In another bowl whisk together milk, eggs and browned butter from pan. Add milk mixture to flour mixture, whisking until smooth. Chill batter, covered, 30 minutes.

FOUR CHEESE QUESADILLA

from Manhattan Chili Company

1 - 8" flour tortilla
1/2 ounce Monterey Jack cheese
1/2 ounce smoked Gouda cheese
3/4 ounce mozzarella cheese
1/2 ounce cheddar cheese
fresh cilantro - chopped fine
1 teaspoon butter (optional)

Grate all cheeses. Using a saute or frying pan, lay tortilla flat and sprinkle on cheese and fresh cilantro. If not using a non-stick surface, use a teaspoon of butter to coat the pan. Heat on medium heat until cheese is melted and tortilla is golden. Fold in half. Cut in wedges and serve with salsa and sour cream.

COMFORT DINER CLASSIC GRILLED CHEESE

2 slices white bread
4 slices yellow American cheese
unsalted butter

Place the cheese between the slices of bread. Butter each side of the sandwich completely with unsalted butter. Grill on low to medium heat until golden brown, turn sandwich and repeat.

The classic American grilled cheese meets its "distant cousins" in these ethnic versions of grilled cheese sandwiches.

CUBAN SANDWICH

2 slices roasted pork
1 slice ham
2 slices Swiss cheese minced garlic in oil
lemon juice
sliced pickles
Cuban Bread or Kaiser Roll vegetable oil

Combine garlic and lemon juice, drizzle mixture onto both sides of bread or roll. Layer sliced pork, ham and Swiss cheese and top with pickles. Set a large skillet over moderate heat and coat with a thin layer of vegetable oil. Place sandwich in skillet. Weigh down the sandwich and flatten with a smaller skillet and cook until the bottom is toasted and cheese has melted. Turn sandwich; add more vegetable oil and repeat.

As a member of Grave Concern, Fred Buch promotes preservation, restoration, and maintenance of Lancaster County's historical graveyards, many which are in disrepair on family farms.

Buch Shares A Grave Concern

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Although Fred Buch builds pipe organs, he shares a "grave concern" with farmers.

"Many farmers have old family burial plots on their farmland. They aren't aware of the laws that govern the care of these sites, nor of the funds to preserve and protect burial sites," Buch said.

Buch is part of the organization called Grave Concern, which was formed to promote the preservation of historic graveyards throughout Lancaster County.

Many farmers are unaware that state law protects historical burial grounds. Because farmers are not allowed to move tombstones, farming techniques are sometimes hampered. Plus the upkeep of the grounds is often more work for already busy farmers.

"We want farmers to know that our organization is available to consult with them, without charge, if they have questions about a cemetery on their property," Buch said.

Grave Concern has been able to link farmers with family members of a cemetery of the farmer's land. The family members often raise funds to restore the cemetery without cost to the farmers.

"These families often continue the maintenance, which is a real benefit to the farmer," Buch said.

"We are concerned that a good repore be maintained between those who want to restore family cemeteries and the owners of the properties so that it is a mutual beneficial situation," Buch said.

Grave Concern has established a format in dealing with owners and in laying out plans for restorations. To establish good relationships, the organization recommends that yearly rent be paid to use farm space access the cemetery.

"In some cases, people show no respect for a farmer's property when accessing a burial plot. We are here to help farmers mediate in situations where communication has broken down."

According to the law, family members must be given access to the burial site, but the type of access should be established in cooperation with the farmer.

In some cases land deeds include specific conditions in maintaining farm cemeteries. On occasion, these conditions have been dropped or rewritten by new owners, but legally the original conditions still apply.

Grave Concern offers free consultation for those who want to preserve family burial plots. They help with mediation between family members and land owners of the plots.

"We are not attorneys, and we don't want to take the place of attorneys, but we can help interpret the law," Buch said.

The organization does have attorneys on the board.

Buch said that he has always been interested in cemeteries. In fact, when the Buch family farm was sold in 1917, the deed instructed that two acres of land surrounding the family cemetery be set aside for the annual Buch family reunion. However for many years, family members did not show any interest in the land. In 1960, during tax reassessment, an infirm family member was notified that taxes needed to be paid or the land would be sold. The land was sold to a farmer who retained and mowed the cemetery lot. Eventually Buch family members heard about the cemetery and offered to restore and care for the burial plot. One of the many nuisances in cemetery upkeep is the damage inflicted by ground hogs, which often dig holes in graveyards. Another is trees that grow wild. The Buch family raised $10,000 to mark and reset stones, and to put a concrete curb and metal fence around the cemetery.

Like many other farm burial plots, the Buch family cemetery was difficult to access through the farmer's land.

A neighboring farmer reached an agreement with the Buchs to allow access to the cemetery.

Grave Concern was formed in 1990 to initiate restoration for the Shreiner Cemetery burial place of Thaddeus Stevens and to prevent the moving of James Buchanan's remains to Wheatland.

"We speak for those who cannot speak for themselves," Buch said of the organizations defense of burial plots. "Buchanan picked his own grave site. We feel strongly that it shouldn't be moved."

After the organization accomplished its initial goals, they dedicated their efforts to historical cemetery preservation, restoration, and maintenance.

During the 1930s and 1940s, a man named Hunter Rineer had catalogued most of the county's cemeteries.

"These gravesites are part of our nation's history," Buch said. "Pioneers settled here and made this place what it is today. People who lived here and set aside the burial ground for their families, and it should be maintained as a memorial to these families."

Unfortunately, little by little some of these were disappearing and no one was sure of what was happening. In some cases, people were actually removing the stones and selling them in antique shops. In one case, a fellow used grave stones for paving stones in his backyard.

Aware of the endangered cemeteries, Grave Concern initiated the drafting of new laws that defines a historic burial ground as one that must be at least 100 years old and no burials within for the last 50 years nor any allowed for the future.

It is now illegal to remove tombstones for road construction or any reason other than for resetting the stones.

If a cemetery needs to be moved, it must be approved by court procedure. "It is possible but not easy to obtain permission," Buch said.

Buch said there is a renewed interest in restoring burial plots. "More family reunions are being revived and more families are starting the project of restoring family burial plots."

Grave Concern provides educational programs in grave yard restoration. In addition, they offer ground penetrating radar to help locate grave sites.

Tombstones offer a glimpse into history.

Buch said, "New Englanders put more epitaphs on their tombstones than the German who were more practical and generally didn't inscribe more than necessary. However, on a tombstone of one of Buch's ancestors, the name of the town where he was born in Germany was included.

"It was wonderful. We visited the community and were able to Make It Wool!

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

JOHNSTOWN (Cambria Co.) – Some 19 participants from around the state, on Oct. 17, journeyed here to take part in the Make It Yourself With Wool, Pennsylvania competition.

Jessica Coriell, Elverson, the senior division winner, modeled a fully-lined pinstripe, brown wool suite. It's jacket was interfaced with armo hair canvas and she used pat stitching to create a beautiful rolled collar.

The jacket also was designed with slightly extended shoulders, shoulder pad, and sleeve headers. With two seams, the sleeves were vented and decorated with four buttons. The jacket front was accented with welt pockets.

A straight slit to ensure ease in walking was featured in Coriell's matching long, slender skirt.

Highlighting the garment's overall attractiveness was an eye-catching, mink collar that Coriell added for a touch of luxury.

January 1999, Coriell and junior winner, Heidi Shryock will compete at national competition in Denver, Col.

Shryock's three-piece ensemble of green, plum, and cream plaid, included a jacket, vest and pants. The jacket was semi fitted and lined above the hip. Likewise, the semi-fitted vest was lined and smartly accompanied by flaps and buttons. The solid color pants were fully lined and designed to taper.

Resplendent in red, Pam Marburger from Espyville, used 100 percent virgin wool crepe woven by Pendleton for a Vogue Paris original suit.

Semi-fitted, the hip length blazer featured a fully interfaced bodice, sweetheart neckline, floating sleeve heads, chest and back pieces.

Pam Marburger, right, won that adult division and Joan Klein placed second at the state competition for Make It Yourself With Wool.

It also featured handmade shoulder pads fashioned with cotton batting and Armoweft interfacing, front seam detail, double interfaced notched collar ending at welted pockets.

There were 11 covered buttons, bound button holes, and sleeve vents.

The slightly tapered, cuffed pants featured front and back darts, waistband and side zipper.

Fully lined, the ensemble was accessorized by a self-designed, gathered-pouch should bag with wooden handles, a hair barrett, and snazzy drop earrings.

A picture of Marburger's garment will be judged at the national level of competition.

Winning in the preteen division was Melissa Lyden from Industry who used 100 pecent wool for a solid navy blue bodice and a matching plaid skit.

Placing second in senior division was Christina Zylka from the Connellsville area; Aleecha Jones, Loysburg, junior; Joan Klein, Darlington, adult; and Nancy Washok of Saegertown in preteen.

Her combination definitely made a statement when Zylka appeared in classical pink wearing a lined wrap jacket, knitted navy and pink cardigan and shell and fully lined pants.

Jones did a fine job constructing a versatile dress and jacket that will always be appropriate and smart looking when confidence counts.

From experience Klein has learned to combine several sources for a stunning effect as evidenced in the ensemble she created from different patterns.

The result was black jacket that, with tucks, pleat and gold chain, looked equally fetching back or front. She incorporated a gold zipper, mandarin collar, and welt pockets.

The straight-leg pants, vest and jacket had lots of top stitching and the mock turtleneck blouse in dark red satin had full sleeves ending with a wide cuff and tucking at the shoulders.

Heidi Svonavec, the state Lamb and Wool Queen, offered assistance to the contestants, the directors and judges whenever it was needed.

Jodell Antram and Barbara Shaffer, state directors, coordinated the competition hosted by Boscov's in the Galleria Mall.

Marge Ankney, Virginia Rhoads, Lisa Hoxie, Roberta Antram, and Vera Shultz were the judges.

Presentation accounted for 60 percent of the total score and encompassed fashion, color, accessories, coordination on contestant; grooming, poise, fit, and appearance.

Forty percent of the score was construction Examined was smoothness, construction methods, inner construction, details, notions, and how well it was pressed.

Sponsors were Pa. Sheep and Wool Growers Assoc.; Pa. dept. of Agriculture, American Sheep Industry Women, and American Sheep Industry Association.

How The Chipmunk Got His Stripes

YORK (York Co.) – The Oneida Indians called the Seneca the "people of the standing rocks:, a description of the western New York mountains where the Seneca, the "gatekeepers" of the western door to the five-nation Iroquois Confederacy, lived.

East autumn after the leaves started falling, Seneca storytellers would gather with their people around campfires and begin teaching about the creatures of the world... how the chipmunk got its stripes, for example. Most of the stories weave a moral tale into the telling; behavior, values, following a natural path are celebrated. But the stories also educated the people about the nature of the animal. The sharing of these stories perpetuated Seneca culture and its values.

Wouldn't eavesdropping in on a Seneca campfire be an interesting experience?

Those interested in doing just that don't need to time travel. They only need to come to Nixon County Park on Sunday, November 15, at 1 p.m. or 3:30 p.m. to hear storyteller Jerry Dietz. Dietz, who is Seneca, will wear traditional attire.

"I tell animal stories that have been passed down for thousands of years...how the chipmunk go its stripes, a story about a rabbit and pussywillow as signs of spring, a story about a hungry raccoon...," Dietz said.

Dietz said telling the stories during the autumn and winter follows an ancient tradition that honors the creatures who might listen to the stories; The Seneca believed that when the stories were told, creatures would stop what they were doing to listen to the stories. If a story teller told about the creature during the summer months, a time when most creatures are busy eating, growing fat for winter, the animal might stop feeding and not be ready for winter. Interfering with the way could bring trouble to the storyteller Dietz said. bees might sting his mouth and tongue.

Dietz also sings traditional Seneca songs at his story telling sessions.

One interesting sideline about the Iroquois and the Seneca; The Iroquois Confederacy, formed in the late 1500s, joined the Seneacas with the Oneidas, Mohawks, Onondagas and Cayugas to form a mutually beneficial collaboration of native peoples that eventually grew into one of the most powerful groups of native people in North America. It was also the basis for our own form of government.

For more information on Dietz's story telling, call Nixon County Park at (717) 428-1961. For other information on York County Parks programs, contact the York County Department of Parks and Recreation, 400 Mundis Race Road, York, PA 17402-9721 or call (717) 840-7440.

ANSWER — Debra Allgyer had requested a recipe for Elephant Ears. Thanks to Alverna Martin, Wellsoboro, and others who sent in recipes and wrote that Elephant Ears are not the same as funnel cakes. By the way, Alverna writes that Debra is her cousin.

Elephant Ears

1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons shortening
2 packages dry yeast
4 cups flour
Oil for frying
Sugar mixture:
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Combine milk, sugar, salt, and shortening; heat through until shortening is melted. Do not boil. Let cool to lukewarm. Add yeast; stir until dissolved. Stir in flour, 2 cups at a time, beating until smooth. Place in greased bowl; cover with damp cloth. Let rise until doubled, about 30 minutes. Dust hands with flour. Pinch off pieces of dough the size of a golf ball.

Roll out very thin, 6-8-inch circle. Fry, one at a time, in hot oil until it rises to the surface; turn and fry other side until lightly browned. Drain on paper towel.

Prepare sugar misture; sprinkle all over while still warm.

Here is a different version from Pat Chance, Clayton, Del. She writes that her family published a cookbook a few years ago and included this recipe.

E Is For Elephant Ears

¼ cup butter
1 cup all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup milk
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
Sugar

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Halloween! My grandchildren usually ask me to go along on their visit to neighbor's homes during this annual holiday. But as I managed to take a big fall last year, I am not sure that I want to walk around in the dark and stumble over a curb again. My knees and hands were badly scraped.

Now when I was younger I though nothing of running from house to house. Some places we were graciously received and other places we knew we were not welcome, but we went anyway. Those days are long gone.

Each fall one of my sisters invites her other sisters on a mystery trip. This year we drove to Middletown to take a train ride. The M & H train was operated as part of the Reading system from 1890 to 1976. Since then it has been an independent railroad. We traveled 11 miles along the Swatara Creek as it followed the towpath of the historic Union Canal.

At the end of the line we disembarked and visited the Indian Echo Caverns. In this huge cavern the temperature is a constant 52 degrees. I have been in many caverns in my lifetime including Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico. But, I was impressed with the size of the rooms in this cavern. A William Wilson actually lived in one room for 19 years long ago. There were 71 steps down to the entrance and that was easy going but the climb up was a bit different.

Five of the seven Shreiner sisters are still living and we enjoyed a day together with our husbands. We included a cousin who was not blessed with siblings. It was a pleasant fall day.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 8

Lancaster Farm Women Society 8 met Oct. 14 at the Home and Farm Center, Lancaster. A business meeting was held and devotions given by Carol Compton.

Guest speaker was Nancy Wiker, family consumer science extension agent. She taught safety measures in food preparation and of health factors related to food safety.

The next meeting for Society 8 will be held Nov. 11.

Lancaster Society 18

Lancaster Farm Women Society 18 held its October meeting at the home of Ruth Rohrer, East Petersburg. Members delighted in being served dessert in delicate dishes that had been passed down through three generations.

The program included a series of three stories by Chris Good, Landisville, who assumed the character of each one. The first was of a small child curled up in a rocking chair taking about her mother. The last was a wonderfully, funny imitation of Julia Child, the cooking author, presenting a television program on roasting a chicken. With her mouth stuffed with bread and using a table, roast pan, and a rubber chicken, Chris looked and sounded just like Julia Child.

Martha Stoner, president, presided at the business meeting. Farm Women are being asked for ideas for changing the date of its annual convention, held during the Pennsylvania Farm Show, to another time and place.

Anna Esbenshade presented a poem and scripture reading for devotions.

Roll call was answered by 17 members by stating their birthplaces.

Members will be filling shoe boxes with toys and clothing to be distributed worldwide through the Samaritan's Purse organization of the Boone family in their evangelical and medical help through Christian outreach. Last year 1,500,000 boxes were distributed in Mexico alone.

The meeting adjourned after singing the birthday song for two members and the Farm Women's theme song.

Cookbook Celebrates Bread Of Life

UNIONVILLE, MD – The congregation of Linganore United Methodist Church has produced a gem of a cookbook full of delicious recipes in celebration of a very special anniversary. Titled "Bread Of Life", the 125 page spiral-bound book contains almost 300 recipes submitted by more than 60 members of the church congregation.

The church will celebrate its 200th anniversary in 1999, and the cookbook is a part of that celebration. As a way of commemorating the history of the church, cookbook committee members reached out to all members of the congregation, asking for their favorite and tastiest recipes. The result is a mouthwatering compilation of 286 recipes, some that span two and even three generations of the church family.

Recently, county residents had an opportunity to tour the church as part of a tour of historic churches of Frederick County, Maryland. The church, located in Unionville, near Union Bridge, has its origins in the Linganore Chapel, a log building that was purchased by the Methodist Society in 1799. In 1867 construction began on a new building. That century old building, along with more modern additions in 1970 and 1984, make up the present day Linganore U.M. Church.

Open this cookbook and you will find recipes that range from the very traditional to the very modern, according to Sharon Fritz, one of the three members of the cookbook committee. The other two members of the committee are Pat Keaton, chairperson, and Olivia Devilbiss. Mrs. Fritz explained that the church had most recently published a cookbook in 1977.

Turn the pages of the cookbook and you will find chapters on appetizers, relishes, and pickles; soups, salads, and sauces; meats and main dishes; vegetables; breads, roll and pastries, and cakes, cookies and desserts. One whole chapter is devoted to beverages, microwave, and miscellaneous recipes, too. Helpful cooking and canning tips, a meat cooking guide, and key to reading and deciphering food labels also are included.

To order a copy of the cookbook send $10 to cover the cost of the book and postage to: Linganore United Methodist Church, Attn: Sharon Fritz, 8921 Clemsonville Road, Union Bridge, Maryland 21791. Books picked up at the church are $7.00

Angus Breeders To Place More Emphasis On Quality

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Speakers representing various aspects of the cattle industry addressed the issues of breeding for selected traits that result in a higher quality product to ensure consumer satisfaction at the 1998 National Angus Conference in Pullman, Wash., Oct. 6-7.

Keynote speaker William Mies, a Texas A&M University professor of animal science, said in order to meet consumer demands, producers need to understand they are not only in the cattle business, but rather in the beef business. Mies addressed enthusiasm versus commitment and the issue of quality, which he said should expand beyond feeding cattle for a single trait like marbling.

"Single trait selection for just USDA quality grade is as wrong as chasing height or shortness," he said.

"It will involve producers taking responsibility for the product they produce and recognizing the desires of the retail customer in planning their production program," Mies told a crowd of more than 225 Angus breeders.

"Because of your involvement in this breed, you've made the quality commitment," Mies said. "You've put your investment dollar in quality."

In order to remain committed to producing a quality end product, Mies suggested that breeders focus on a uniformity within their own cow herd. This starts with culling the extreme ends of the herd. Once a herd is more uniform in size and type, the producer will be able to wean and/or feed a more uniform set of calves, resulting in a more consistent end product.

"We need to become less flamboyant and more scientific," he said.

"Without commitment to fulfilling consumer satisfaction," Mies said, "the beef industry will not be able to compete with the other meat industries,"

"We need to put quality and the lessons of quality in the cattle business because that will determine our ultimate survival," Mies concluded.

Glen Dolezal, a professor of meat science at Oklahoma State University in Stillwater, said that producers need a thorough understanding of the factors known to influence cooked meat tenderness, juiciness, and flavor in order to improve and maintain the desirable taste for beef consumers.

"Meat quality, consistency and overall palatability are major concerns of several industry sectors," Dolezal said.

"Marbling deposition in cattle and ultimate flavor, juiciness and tenderness desirability are the results of breed composition, diet energy concentration and length of the finishing phase," Dolezal said. "Unquestionably, marbling ability always has been, and continues to be a strength of the Angus breed."

Quality, value, service and consistency are the four big factors that consumers are looking for according to Edd Hendee. Hendee is the owner and operator of Taste of Texas Restaurant in Houston, which serves Certified Angus Beef,™ and topped more than $9 million in sales for 1998. He said that customers are willing to pay more for a higher quality product.

Hendee, who has been in the restaurant business for 21 years, said the consumer will consistently choose the highest quality piece of meat he or she in the dining situation can afford. The consumer will pay more while dining because they perceive their time as valuable.

"The customer is specifically interested in being satisfied with quality and value determined by flavor and taste, not by price," Hendee said.

Roy Wallace, vice president of beef programs at Select Sires, Plain City, Ohio, said the biggest problem with providing a uniform product to consumers is that too many people are making production decisions.

"Half of all beef cows in the United States are in herds of less that 100 head, so we have

Pennsylvania DHIA Year-End Reports

The end-of-year results of Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement records for 1998 show that a Lebanon County Holstein herd has a rolling herd average to complete the year that is first in both milk and protein. The top production records for individual cows was shared by three different farms. All top records were by Holsteins in 305 days.

The top Pa.Dhia herd rolling averge for milk and protein belonged to Scott and Karen Nolt, Lebanon, whose 92-cow herd made an average of 32,649m 1,050f 1,020p.

Karl and Daniel Brandt, Annville, had the second place herd rolling average for both milk and protein. Their 103-cow herd made an average of 31,680m 1,199f 1,007p. They also had the third high individual record. Beauty produced 46,053m 1,168p 1,069f

Third place in milk, protein, and fat was the 74-cow herd of Valleys-End farm, Rebeisburg. This rolling herd average was 31,586m 1,220f 1,007p.

Dale and Rodney Bloom, Seward, had the top rolling herd average for fat production. Their 173-cow herd averaged 24,440m 1,286f 753p.

Scot Lyn Dairy, Rome, had the second high rolling herd average for fat. Their 45-cow herd had 31,570m 1,238f 982p. They also had the second high individual record for milk. Fern produced 47,216m 1,201p 1,385f.

The top producing cow in the state for milk was No. 77 for Jimandot Holsteins, Myerstown. She produced 48,221m 1,419p 1,108f. Her record was also third in protein.

The top protein producer was No. 1050 for Meyers Bro. Dairy, St Thomas. She produced 43,091m 1,536p 1,478f. Meyers Bro. also had the second place fat producer with No. 1204. Her production was 39,464m 1,318p 2,187f.

Plushanski Farms, Kutztown, had the second high protein cow with Farma. She produced 42,606m 1,465p 1,600f.

Paul and Karen Sherry, Commodore, had the high individual fat record. Charity produced 31,214m 831p 2,395f. The percentage of fat was 7.7%

Juniperdale Farm, Nazareth, had the third high individual fat record. Ping produced 40,953m 1,184p 2,148f

The lowest somatic cell count in milk is also recognized because it indicates milk quality. The lowest SCC for the year was 60,000 on Joseph Snyders herd at Millmont.

Second and third SCC counts for the year were tied at 64,000. Keith Decker, Knox; and Greg and Sheryl Seeley, Canton had these low counts.

PaDHIA year-end results are based on September results. The rest of the year, the top producing herds and cows are reported monthly.

Snider's Elevator To Host Annual Open House

LEMASTERS (Franklin Co.) — Snider's Elevator Inc. will host its 3rd annual Open House and guided tours at their Lemasters facility on Friday, Nov. 6 and Saturday, Nov. 7 on Lemar Rd.

Snider's Elevator will have a tent set up in front of their retail store so that open house can be held rain or shine. Vendors in the tent will represent companies such as dog and cat food manufacturers and wild bird feed suppliers, as well as horse and dairy cow health suppliers.

Saturday morning, starting at 7:30 a.m. Snider's will be giving out free pancakes and coffee.

Miniature horses from Harmony Hill Stables and South Lawn Stables will also be in the tent. Milking goats from Pipe Dreams Fromage will be present for a milking demonstration.

Sharon Hanna, local journeyman farrier, will be on hand to demonstrate making horseshoes. Also, dairy nutritionists from Master Mix and Southern States will be present to explain feed formulations. Customers can register to win doorprizes such as a 19-inch color TV and a Winross truck, as well as many other prizes. This year the Nutro pet feed company will give away a year's supply of dog or cat food.

On Friday afternoon at 3 local "D & S Bluegrass Band" will perform at the store entrance. Free food will be available both days. Tours will be leaving every hour of the open house. Groups are welcome to participate in the tours. Snider's grain receiving and feed manufacturing facilities will be included in the tours.

This year dairy farmers are invited to participate in the free dairy herd parasite evaluation program, sponsored by Hoechst Roussel. Dr. Gil Myers from Magnolia, Ky. will be conducting the parasite evaluations. Myers, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, travels extensively through the U.S. conducting parasite evaluation clinics to determine parasite burdens and their effect on production in beef and dairy cattle.

Snider's Elevator open house hours are Friday, Nov. 6 from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday, Nov. 7, 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

A. B. C. Groff Acquires Diesel Franchise

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — This year marks Yanmar Diesel Engine's entry into the U.S. market with its mini wheel loader and mini excavator with operating weights less than 10,200 pounds.

Yanmar excavators are known for their uniquely balances undercarriage system. This offset-crawler design, known as ViCTAS, expands the width between crawler tracks for greater transverse stability and lengthens the tracks for increased longitudinal stability. The longer crawlers also boost lifting capability, improve efficiency, and reduce operator fatigue.

A spokesman for A. B. C. Groff said that the acquisition of the Yanmar mini excavator and mini wheel loader will allow them to offer customers more options and versatility at their job sites. Customers currently operating a tractor loader backhoe would benefit by replacing it with a skid steer loader and a mini excavator.

Groff's spokesman explained that mini wheel loaders are extremely maneuverable because of articulated steering and will not disturb turf like other machines.

With a reasonable investment cost, the combination would be easier to transport, take less fuel, and get the work done faster.

Groff's spokesman explained that the mini wheel loaders are extremely maneuverable because of articulated steering and will not disturb turf like some other machines. These machines will be attractive to landscapers, nurseries, farmers, and many other applications.

Case Corporation Introduces Baler

RACINE, Wis. — The Case IH 8585 large square baler is part of Case Corporation's largest-ever hay and forage product introduction featuring 15 new products designed to meet the increased productivity needs of farmers.

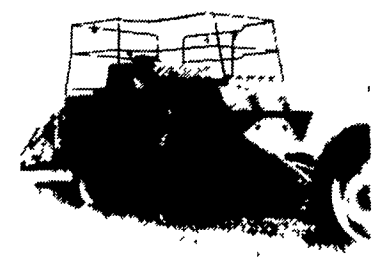
"Case IH large square balers are designed to produce the highest quality hay with the least amount of handling," said Marsha Dabich, Case IH livestock production systems marketing manager. Complementing the 8575 and 8950 balers, the 8585 baler completes the Case IH square baler family for large hay producers.

"The Case IH 8585 baler can handle dry- or high-moisture hay or silage, producing a three-by-four foot bale weighing up to 1,500 pounds dry," noted Dabich. "Large bales mean reduced time loading and unloading. Similarly, reduced handling in the baler increases hay quality."

To reduce the loss of protein-rich leaves, the Case IH centerline design flows hay gently through the system with the least amount of handling. The wide, low-profile pickup has dual cam tracks on the left and right side for smoother flow of hay. Centering augers softly transfer the hay to the packing fingers. Once in the prepacker chamber, bale flakes consistent in weight and size are formed. Weight sensors trigger the stuffing cycle, ensuring consistent sizes. Leaves lost from the flake of hay as it is lifted into the bale chamber fall onto the next flake.

"Case IH large square balers provide customers with consistent bale flakes, density and weight," said Dabich. "This high-quality performance will pay off for large hay producers."

The balers also provide a number of innovative features, simplifying baling. Once the bale is formed, an innovative knotting system uses top and bottom twine tensioners to evenly feed twine around the bale, eliminating twine disc pullout. In addition, the 8585 baler has capacity for 30 balls of twine — the largest twine capacity of any large square baler in the industry, permitting a full day's baling without interruption. And, a new automatic centralized lubrication system provides positive displacement of grease to 17 points on the baler for constant lube flow and more efficient operation.



Designed with a large hay producer in mind, the Case IH 8585 large square baler produces three-by-four foot bales with dry weights up to 1,500 pounds. The large size reduces handling, ensuring higher quality hay and reduced labor costs.

Hoffman Seeds Celebrates 'Product of the Year' Award

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Novartis Seeds Field Crops is the winner of the agricultural industry's prestigious "1998 Product of the Year Award" for its launch of its NK® Brand Bt corn, the first hybrids genetically enhanced to control European corn borers.

Hoffman Seeds produces, markets and distributes Novartis Seeds' full NK® Brand product line in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic, including corn, alfalfa and soybeans. This season, Hoffman introduces several new corn hybrids for the East Coast including N17-C5, N21-V6, N29-F1, N31-L4, N52-B2, N70-D5, NX8308 and NX8608.

The award, sponsored by national trade magazine Agri Marketing, recognizes one agricultural product each year for outstanding marketing and impact in the marketplace. This award highlights the significant technological advance that Novartis Seeds has developed for corn growers throughout the world, a significant number of whom used this technology in 1998 to protect against this yield-damaging insect.

MIFFLINBURG (Union Co.) — About 130 producers and agri-industry representatives attended the Mifflinburg Farmers Exchange Trade Show held at the company's headquarters here in early September.

The field day featured the latest new products and a pig roast for area farmers. Mifflinburg Farmers Exchange is an 80-year-old company that provides feed and farm supplies, according to Roger Shuck, president. The trade show featured suppliers who provided information to customers.

Pa. Soybean Board Awards $110,000 Grant Funds

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Benefit to growers was the key factor in decisions awarding nearly $110,000 in 1998 Pennsylvania Soybean Board research grant funds last month, according to PASB Chairman Mike Gerhardt.

"The board funded eight different projects addressing areas of grower concern," said Gerhardt, "from burcucumber management and controlling white mold on soybean crops to evaluating profit and yield potential for food grade and organic soybean varieties for Pennsylvania growers."

The Pennsylvania Soybean Board awarded $109,382 in 1998 grant funds to production research and market development projects at its annual spring grant meeting in Lancaster. The farmer board, which collects checkoff funds on soybeans sold in the state, also administers those funds, overseeing a variety of production research projects, market development work, and promotion and education projects aimed at improving the picture for soybean growers.

Grants for 1998 include seven production research projects and one "new uses" development project. Six grants go to Penn State researchers working in various areas of soybean research: "Prediction of Amino Acid Profiles in Soybean Meal and Other Feed Ingredients" ($8,500), "Evaluation of Soybean Germplasm Under PA Conditions" ($6,000), "Sclerotina Sterm Rot of Soybeans" ($21,172), "Burcucumber Management in Soybeans and Corn ($16,609), "Soybean Response to Nitrogen Fertilization in Conservation Tillage" ($6,128), and "Functionality Maps for Soy Protein Ingredient" ($13,278). Another production research grant goes to Rodale Institute for "Evaluation of Food Grade Soybean Varieties" ($12,695), an area of growing interest to many producers.

The board also funded an interesting new project aimed at developing and bringing to market a new use for soybean crops, "Extreme Pressure Metalworking Lubricating Oils and Greases from Soybeans," directed by Desilube Technologies ($25,000), a Pennsylvania firm specializing in development of lubricants, a hot new area for soybean product development.

"This project is especially exciting because it has national stature and national support," explained Gerhardt. "Desilube first proposed the work to the United Soybean Board, who ranked it very high on their list of priority funding for its value to producers nationally. We were happy to be able to respond to USB's request for state support for this groundbreaking work in developing new uses for soy crops."

While PASB's directors are farmers, the board aims to ensure that grants meet producer needs effectively in other ways as well. Last year, the board held an informal research "focus group" meeting at Penn State, including board members, researchers, extension agents, college administration and individual growers. Extension agent John Yocum also serves as a PASB director, helping to provide valuable field expertise and two-way communication between PASB directors and other Pennsylvania farmers.

"The board welcomes grower input in determining research priorities," Gerhardt noted. "As a grower funded effort, the soybean checkoff is most successful when growers share their insights and opinions on what is most valuable to them so funds can be directed toward those needs."

Project results for 1998 grants will be available in April 1999 by calling the PASB office at (410) 742-9500. Interested producers are also encouraged to call the office now to request results of 1997 production research projects which have just concluded.

Dairy Ingredient Marketing Adds Value

ROSEMONT, Ill – A new marketing campaign to promote food technologists' understanding and usage of nonfat dry milk and dry whey, funded by the dairy checkoff program, has been launched.

The new $3 million effort, themed Do it with dairy.™, positions these two key dairy ingredients as value-added components in both existing and new food formulations.

"Dairy farmer-funded market research identified nonfat dry milk and dry whey as a priority growth opportunity for the dairy industry," said Bill Haines, vice president, Business to Business Marketing, dairy Management, Inc.

Research from the American Dairy Products Institute shows the use of nonfat dry milk in mixes and blends has been growing at a compounded annual rate of 45 percent from 1992 to 1996. Dry whey usage in mixes and blends has increased at a compounded annual rate of nearly 13 percent during that same period.

"While awareness of dairy-based ingredients is universal and usage levels are high, we still can provide more information on the versatile functionality of nonfat dry milk and dry whey to encourage greater use," said Haines. "Every penny per pound increase in the price of whey alone translates in a five- to six-cent per hundredweight increase in the value of milk."

According to Haines, these dairy ingredients are vital components in a wide range of food products, including dairy, baked goods, meats, confections, beverages and snack foods.

"The integrated marketing program now in place also will provide dairy ingredient technologies to food manufactures to build demand for nonfat dry milk and dry whey," said Haines. "It's readily apparent there is a strong market for highly functional ingredients backed by helpful technical support. Therefore, we are offering extensive assistance to food technologists via a technical support hotline, targeted advertising, newsletter, technical white papers and immediate dissemination of ingredient information upon request. Our goal is to meet and exceed the marketplace requirements by providing information and much-needed education on dairy ingredients."

Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) and Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion are the local planning and management organizations, funded by dairy farmer dollars, responsible for increasing demand for U.S. - produced dairy products on behalf of America's dairy farmers. They work closely with Dairy Management, Inc.™ to implement dairy promotion, education and research programs nationwide.

Since the national dairy farmer checkoff program began in 1984,diary promotional organizations have helped to increase total dairy sales by approximately 200 billions pounds - a 29 percent increase - more than USDA projections. To learn more about dairy farmer-funded efforts, contact the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association at (410) 321-0266 or Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program at (814) 498-2058.

Angus Breeders

thousands of people making genetic decisions," he said. "If we as the beef industry are going to supply cattle and enhance the beef industry, we are going to change the genetics so the product we produce will have the highest value possible."

Wallace said in order to change genetics, each individual breeder must first look at the five major traits of economic importance. Those traits include birth weight, growth, milk production, fertility, and carcass traits like marbling and retail product. Once these five traits are considered, breeders will need to use some type of indexing system to select bulls on an economic-value basis.

Wallace has developed a formula, which he calls the "Power Score," for computing an index on bulls. He adds the birth, weanling, yearling, and milk expected progeny differences (EPDs) percentiles and divides them by four. The bull with the lowest number has the best power score. Using carcass data, Wallace has developed a new carcass power score. This formula adds the percentile rankings for both marbling and percent retail product, which is then divided by two.

"Sire selection in both the purebred segment and commercial segment will become more important than it has in the past," he said.

When the Case International 3800 Tandem Disk Harrow was introduced, it combined real improvements with the quality features of the 350, 370, and 475.

For instance, a 1½ inch round arbor bolt at the heart of every gang assembly.

Or consider the spring-cushion, self-leveling hitch. And, you'll disk confidently all day long using the mechanical depth control.

The 3800 is available in widths from 9 ft. 1 in. to 20 ft. 6 in. Just pick the 3800 that fits your power availability and tillage needs.

Buy your new cushion gang disk harrow right here in Quarryville 12', 14', 19' In Stock For Fall Tillage.

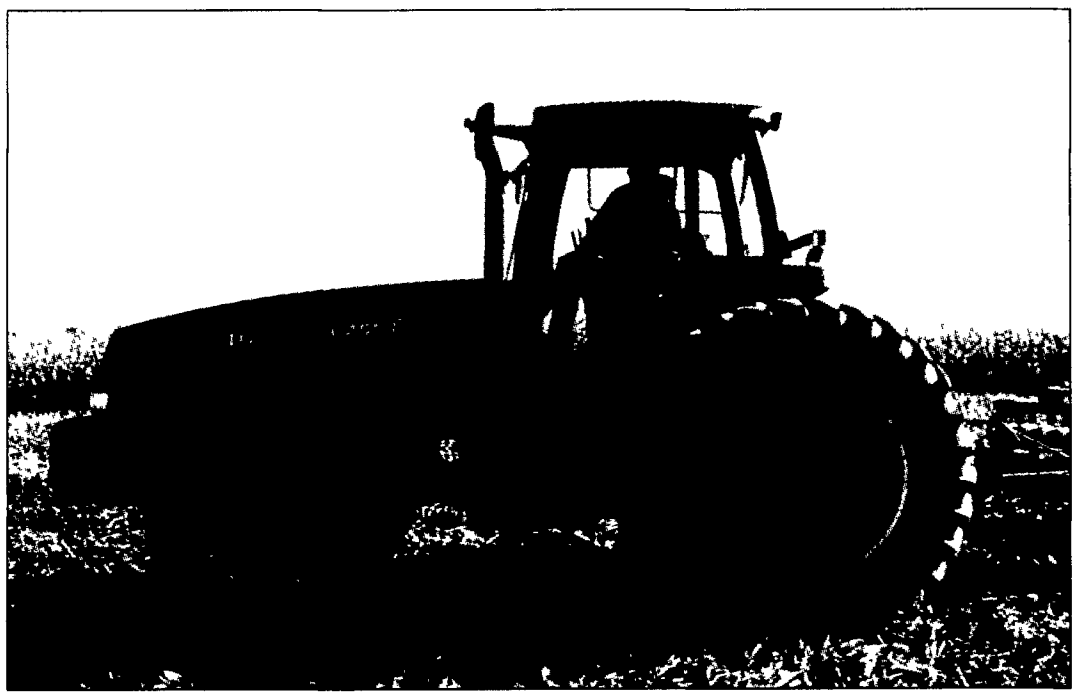
WHAT DID YOUR NEIGHBORS SAY ABOUT THE NEW MX MAGNUMS?

The Results From Our FIELD DAY Are In.



Doug Engle
Silver Maple Farms
Cochranville, PA

"The main advantages over the older Magnums are the increased visibility and turning radius."

Jeff Rohrer
Rohrer Construction
Kirkwood, PA

"It was a very nice machine and a definite jump from the others."

Linford Weaver
Friskey Acres Farm

"The new MX was very easy to get used to. There was a big difference with the controls and visibility. The tractor had great power and I liked the advancements with the hydraulics."

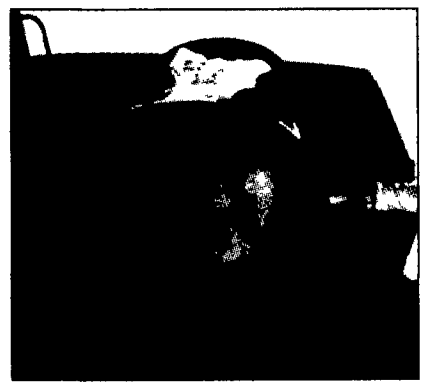
Gary Stoltzfus
Berchester Farms
Elverson, PA

"It was very different than the other Magnums and it handled nice and steered short for a 4 wheel-drive tractor. With the convenience of electronic shifting and having all the controls at your fingertips, it sure feels good to run one."

Thomas & Harold Dancer
Sunny View Farms
Freehold, NJ

"The MX had a lot of power, an excellent turning radius, and the electronic shifting was a big plus allowing us the shift on the fly."

"The tractor was balanced well, was very manuverable, and there was no wheel slippage with the weight we were pulling. The cab was very comfortable, and the visibility was excellent."



Brad Gerhart
Future Case IH Lifetime User
Quarryville, PA

"They are good."

Supreme Dairy Animals Picked At Frederick Event

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md. – The supreme champions of the 4-H and open class dairy shows were selected in an evening extravaganza dubbed the LegenDAIRY'98 Celebration here at the fairgrounds in Frederick.

The event, set to music and complete with a cake cutting ceremony, parade of champion dairy goats, and a milk mustache award, highlighted Frederick County's number one industry–agriculture–during the final days of the 136th annual Great Frederick Fair.

Judges for the evening were Jeff Myers, Westminster, who works with the Maryland State 4-H program, and Jason Myers, of Windsor-Manor Farm, New Windsor. All six dairy breeds were represented by junior and senior champions in both the 4-H and open shows.

Shady Creek Lem Mae Madora, a 9-year-old Brown Swiss cow exhibited by Jennifer Keilholtz of Glad-Ray Farm, Emmitsburg, won the judges' admiration and was named supreme champion of the open show.

Madora showed a combination of dairyness and strength, accented by a beautifully attached udder that impressed the judges as something really special, especially in an aged cow.

"For a 9-year old she just has such a tremendous, capacious udder. You've got to admire an animal who has this kind of longevity with this kind of production," said Jeff Myers.

"She has so much quality about her; so much dairyness and openness of rib. Her udder is so highly attached. It's just very, very difficult to fault this animal.

Currently milking 90 pounds a day, Madora was fresh this past December and will calve again in December, said Jennifer Keilholtz. The Keilholtz family milks 65 Holsteins and Brown Swiss cows at their Glad-Ray Farm in Emmitsburg. Madora was purchased as a calf from Richard Wenger, Manheim, Pa. explained Keilholtz. She was nominated All-American as a 2-Year-old and was reserve grand champion this year at the Maryland State fair.

An outstanding Ayrshire winter calf exhibited by Mark Valentine of Vales-Pride Farm, emmitsburg, was selected as the 4-H and open junior supreme animal. Vales-Pride Demand Rodeo was a heifer that had all the correctness, the strength, and the balance to satisfy the judges.

"The Ayrshire is a tremendous individual; a beautiful, blended, stylish calf." said Jason Myers. Jeff Myers agreed that the heifer was a beautiful, stylish individual from head to toe.

The Valentine family milks 150 cows on their 425 acre farm. They also showed the senior champion 4-H Ayrshire, and the senior champion open class Ayrshire this year at the Frederick fair.

A senior 3-year Jersey, TE-Faw Golden Aron Callie, exhibited by Emily Fawley, was named the 4-H senior supreme champion. TE-Faw Farm, home of the Fawley family, is in Jefferson. The Fawleys farm 300 acres.

Jeff Myers said, "I think the Jersey makes an outstanding winner. There is just so much quality about her; she's just an outstanding individual," He said he especially liked the jersey's high, wide rear udder.

Thurmont Cooperative and Farmers Cooperative Association of Frederick donated monetary awards to the open class supreme champions. Rodman Myers was on hand to represent Thurmont Cooperative, and Dave Remsburg represented FCA of Frederick.

A milk mustache contest, held earlier during the fair, was organized by Fern Hines. The winner of the contest was 6-month-old Emily Ann Sewall, daughter of John and Lori Sewall.

Seed Corn Direct Marketer Helps Farmers Save

MONTICELLO, Ind. — This fall more than 350,000 corn growers nationwide will have an extraordinary opportunity to increase their profits and decrease their production costs by buying premium seed corn, including three new Bt hybrids, for a price that is 35 percent less than the cost of national corn seed brands.

The offer comes from Indiana-based Fielder's Choice Direct, the nation's first seed corn company to market high performance hybrids directly to the grower. Growers are advised to call a toll-free 800 number for a free copy of the 1999 Fielder's Choice Direct catalog. The company offers a full line of non-Bt hybrids for just $64 per 80,000 kernel bag, nearly 35 percent below the cost of national brands. This year's selection also includes three new hybrids containing the Bt gene for resistance to the European corn borer.

Founded by Indiana farmer Mike Williams in 1985, Fielder's Choice Direct was recently identified as one of the fastest growing seed corn companies in the nation, posting an annual growth rate of nearly 30 percent. After recently completing an expansion of its corporate headquarters in Monticello, Ind., the company has now extended its marketing efforts into 41 corn producing states.

Williams, president of Fielder's Choice Direct, attributes the company's growth to an information management system that tracks more than 60 data points and agronomic practices for each customer, and a direct-to-the-farmer marketing and distribution program that eliminates dealer/distributor costs, marketing test plots, field signs, even the cost of free caps and jackets, and passes the savings directly to the grower.

At the heart of the Fielder's Choice Direct concept is a comprehensive information management program, a sophisticated telecommunications network, and a staff of certified crop advisers and seed consultants assigned to help each customer select the ideal combination of hybrids and genetic traits for his farm and farming conditions.

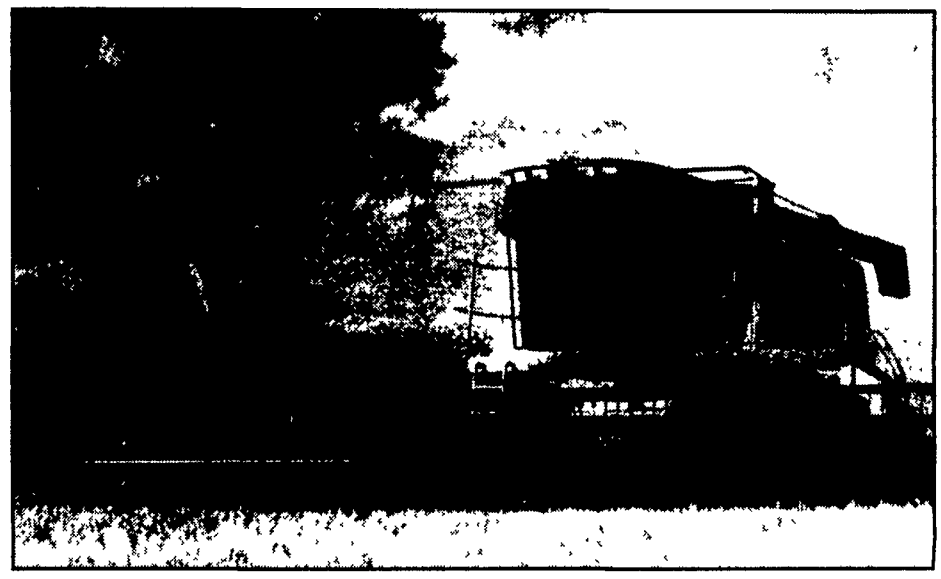
You've Never Seen A Harvest Like This



Introducing The 2300 Series Axial-Flow® Combines.

The three 2300 Series combines are equipped with a high-visibility operator environment so revolutionary, everything else is history.

Wider, amazingly comfortable and designed with convenient cab-forward controls and instrumentation, this cab literally conforms to its occupant. An engineering landmark – Focalized Cab Mounting – minimizes motion for a smooth, steady ride. A multi-function propulsion lever puts most operations right in the palm of your hand. And an all-new right-hand console moves in tandem with your seat.

At the heart of the 2300 Series remains the strength of the Axial-Flow combine – the exclusive, patented rotor. And the recent addition of the Cross Flow™ cleaning fan provides a remarkably uniform, powerful airflow throughout the entire sieve area.

Why not stop by and see the new Case IH 2300 Series for yourself? We'll help you discover a better way of looking at your harvest.

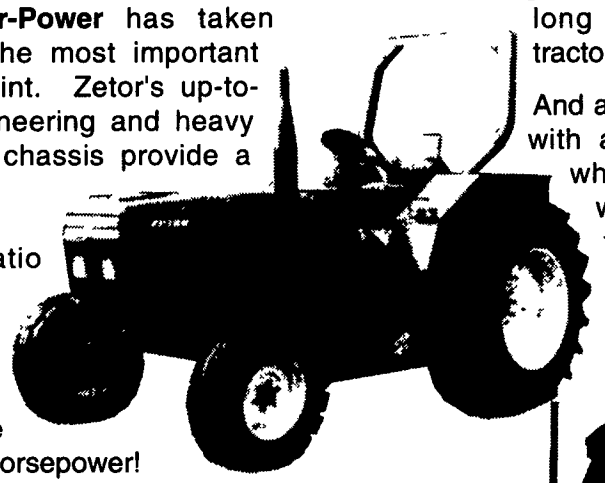
Zetor's Low Prices Used To Be The Quickest Way For Dealers To Make Sales.

But Zetor-Power has taken over as the most important selling point. Zetor's up-to-date engineering and heavy cast iron chassis provide a balanced power-to-weight ratio that means a Zetor tractor does more with less horsepower!



Zetor tractors still pull their own weight after 16 years...twice as long as most American tractors.

And all Zetor tractors come with a two year warranty which underscores its worldwide reputation for building quality tractors that last, and more and more farmers are quick to agree.

CLAAS Country
Meeting all your harvesting needs!

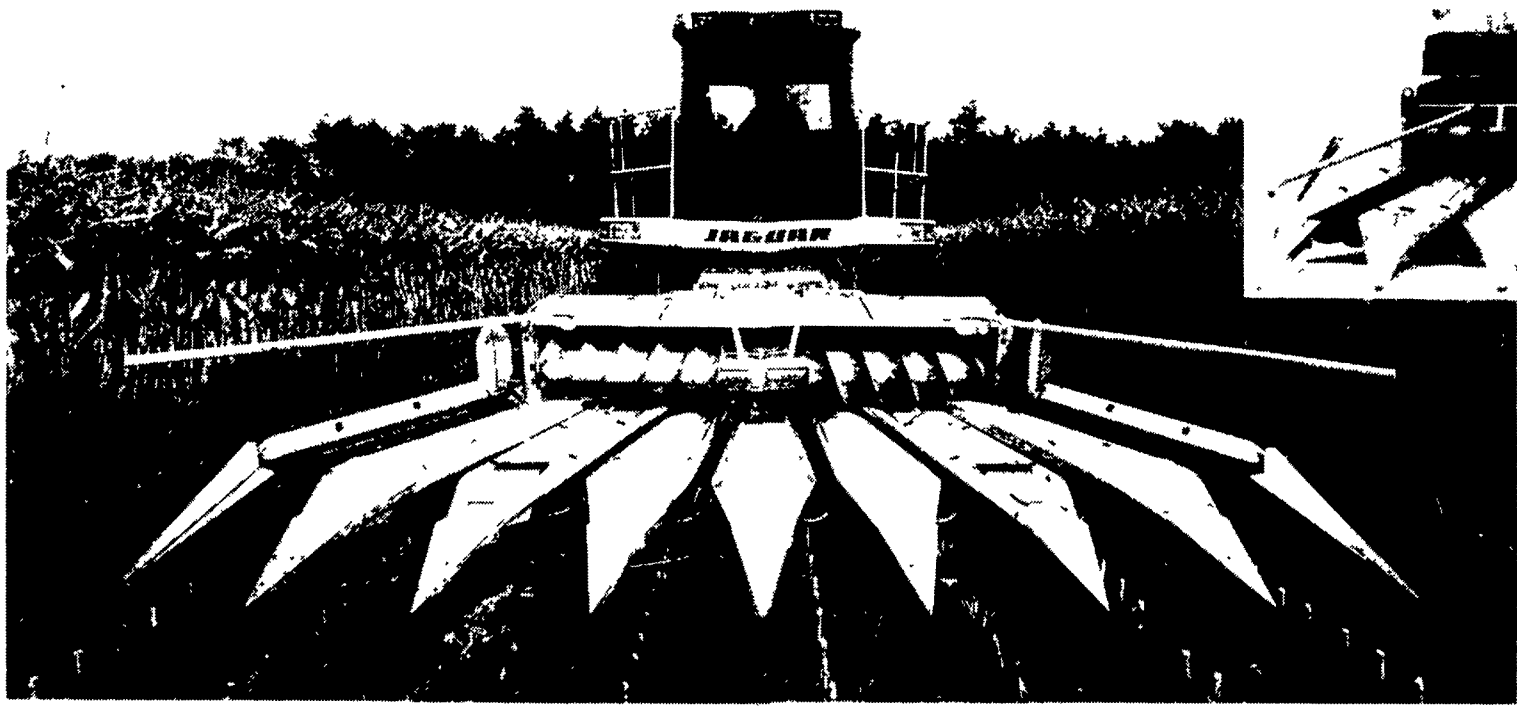
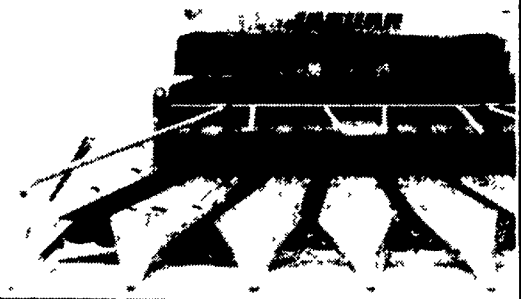
Leola, PA 17540 Phone: (717) 656-2321

Located: 4 miles West of New Holland on Rt. 23, 1 1/2 miles Northeast of Leola on the No. Groffdale Rd., 1 mile on the right, opposite Groffdale Mennonite Church.

New dimensions in harvesting corn

Corn headers from CLAAS are acknowledged by professionals as setting the standards for high speed silage corn harvesting at every stage of ripeness. High performing JAGUAR foragers can be equipped - depending on the model - with 4, 6 or 8 row CLAAS headers

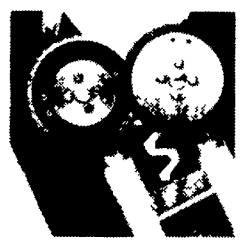




CLAAS also offers the tried and tested 6 row header alongside the 8 row version It has established an enthusiastic following among contractors and farmers for many years The outer picking units on the 6 row header are raised manually to reach the travel width of 10 feet

If you have to harvest very ripe corn silage you can fit the additional rasp floor concave in addition to the corn cracker. Equipped with either 4 or 8 rasp bars, the crop is thoroughly grated including the very hard stems.

The extremely low and slim profile of the dividers collect hanging and laid crops with ease and feed them steadily to the intake auger The stem dividers above the header support this operation. Three or four header speeds enhance the crop flow. In down corn the additional laid crop augers can be a useful option.



The cutting discs are pretensioned to always work at the right pressure. They are self sharpening and maintenance free.

The CLAAS AUTOPILOT is patented and is an essential tool in the corn harvest You can harvest without losses even in weed infested or hanging crops, in bad visibility or at night. The forager is steered through the rows fully automatically You are free to focus your attention on the speed, the intake and chute

The 8 row header can be equipped with the sensor controlled CONTOUR PLUS height control. The header hovers over the ground with no ground pressure, a big plus on soft or spongy ground.

The 8 row header is moved from the working to the transport position in a matter of minutes

It is simply folded up hydraulically

The 8 row corn header in front of the JAGUAR 880 lets you set up new output records. The combination of the JAGUAR 860 and the 8 row header is another ideal mix. The benefits are clear. fewer tracks in the field, reduced turning times, more flexibility when opening up the fields, reduced harvesting speeds whilst achieving virtually the same output. Of course, there's no need to remove the 8 row header for road travel

Ace Expo Dec. 16 In Lancaster

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The third annual Ag Computing and Electronics (ACE) Expo will be Wednesday, Dec. 16, from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. here at the Lancaster Host Resort.

The expo features more than 40 sessions designed to help farmers throughout the Mid-Atlantic and Northeast regions put the latest electronic technology to work in their operations.

Through informative seminars, hands-on workshops and a trade show, attendees will learn about and experience precision agriculture, computer and communications technology that can enhance profitability and efficiency. Sessions aimed at experienced computer-users and novices alike will cover a variety of hardware, software, and business management topics.

The trade show will feature exhibits from companies specializing in ag software, hardware, and interfacing equipment for barn, field, and pickup truck. There will be 30-minute breaks between workshops, giving attendees ample time to talk with vendors and compare products.

The event's keynote luncheon speaker will be Doug Harford of Mazon, Ill., who will discuss the future of precision agriculture. Harford grows corn and soybeans on 1,800 acres, where he has experimented with everything from computerized yield monitors and spray controllers to aerial infrared photography.

The registration fee for the ACE Expo is $59 until Oct. 31. After Oct 31, the fee is $79. Spouses receive a $10 discount. Lunch is included in the registration fee. The five "Hands-On Workshops" each require an additional $25 fee to cover computer lab and instructional costs.

The event is sponsored by Pennsylvania Farmer and Maryland Farmer magazines, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Maryland Cooperative Extension, Nutrient Solutions in Agriculture and Pennsylvania Farm Bureau. Financial support comes from Pennsylvania Friends of Agriculture, and Penn State and Maryland Cooperative Extension.

For more information, visit the ACE Expo on the World Wide Web at http://aceexpo.cas.psu.edu or call your county's Penn State Cooperative Extension office to receive a brochure.
